Summer Has Come. Ambition's Opportunity. Anti-Catholic Agitation. Taxing and Spending.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DECORATION DAY and the double holiday have gone. All work days, excepting Sundays, from now until fall, with one break on July Fourth.

Summer, and hot weather that takes the mind from work are here.

For the young, summer stretches ahead forever, every day a fortnight, every week a year.

For the old, summer is only another of the few links remaining, and passing, ever more swiftly.

BUT ONE THING should be said, each summer, even though only one among millions may listen.

The turtle won his race while the hare was asleep. While others rest, shirk, or postpone is the time of opportunity. A day of hard work in summer is worth two days in winter.

In times of depression, millions stand like men "at scratch" in a race.

Great successes date from depressions. They mean opportunity for the man that will not be discouraged.

YESTERDAY, POPE PIUS celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday. Flags flew from public buildings in the papal state, messages of congratulation and affection poured in from all over the world.

But it was an anxious day for the head of the Catholic church. Fascist antagonism toward the Vatican grows more intense. Fascists authorities have raided and closed all Catholic clubs in Rome, including three playgrounds financed by American Knights of Columbus.

THE CATHOLIC organization called "Catholic Action," accused of political agitation, hostile to Fascism, is ordered dissolved by Mussolini, in all its branches. And the Pope, facing such hostility, feeling compelled to cancel the Italian Eucharistic Congress, called for next week, speaks of his birthday as "one of the saddest days of my life."

THE SADNESS of the Pontiff is accentuated, doubtless, by a feeling of isolation in Europe. In other days, he would have felt himself strongly supported, on one side by Spain, on the other by Austria, both devoted to the church then, now changed.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to exaggerate the historical importance of this anti-religious outbreak, developing with such suddenness in Italy and Spain, two most deeply Catholic countries hitherto.

SENATOR KING, of Utah, is gloomy about the national debt situation. He says taxpayers will rebel and strike if the heavy burden continues.

How will they rebel? How will they strike? They will pay, or lose their property, and pay or go to jail.

[illegible] DEBT of the nation, na[illegible], state, municipal, plus [illegible]ed indebtedness of corpor[illegible] and real estate mort[illegible] amounts to ONE HUN[illegible] AND FIFTY-TWO BIL[illegible] SEVEN HUNDRED [illegible] of dollars.

[illegible] is a considerable sum. [illegible] Senator King says all the property in the country is worth only three hundred and fifty billions.

THAT ESTIMATE, fortunately, is low. It does not include the value of human intelligence. Our annual income is at least one hundred billions, and a man or nation should be able to carry and wipe out a debt equal to only 30 months' income.

Nonetheless it is true that the "docile Americans," as Northcliffe called us, allow themselves to be taxed, robbed, their money squandered by a parcel of politicians of whom a [illegible] never have done a [illegible] day's work.

Look at the city of New York, spending in a year more than the United States government used to spend, before the war.

IF YOU SEEK a foolish nation, consider this one.

We were out of the war, did not start it. But we went in, up to our necks, lent ten thousand million dollars, sent three million men, spent heaven knows how many billions, most of it wasted by one-dollar-a-year profiteers.

And what did we get?

PROHIBITION, AND THE HATRED OF EVERY NATION IN EUROPE, especially of those to whom we lent money and sent men.

Depression? Is it a wonder that such a set of "self-governing" school boys have survived at all.

POPE, DUCE ACT FOR PEACE

Prospects of Settlement Held Good After Pontiff Confers With Cardinals

ROME, June 1.—(AP.)—Prospects of a settlement of difficulties between the Vatican and the Italian government emerged today from conferences by the Pope and Premier Mussolini with their advisers.

At the end of a meeting with 24 cardinals of the Curia, the Pontiff directed the editor of the newspaper, Osservatore Romano, to discontinue his editorial attacks on Fascist students who have participated in anti-Catholic demonstrations for the past week.

At the same time the Premier passed the word to Fascist editors that they were to cease their campaigns, at least for the time being, against the Catholic Action Organization.

FIELD CLEAR

This leaves the field clear for diplomatic negotiations and it was expected that representatives of the two governments would move immediately to effect an agreement.

Another element was injected into the diplomatic phase today when Papal Count Edward Hearn, director of activities for the American Knights of Columbus in Rome, filed a protest against the closing of three playgrounds operated by that organization.

He asked Ambassador Garrett to pass the protest on to the Italian government and to demand an explanation for what he called "an unjustified and unjustifiable action."

DISPUTE OVER SOCIETY

The Catholic Action Organization, a society of laymen formed for the study of sociological and educational activities, is an influential body in Italy, where it has several hundred thousand members.

It is forbidden to participate in politics, and the Lateran treaty states specifically that Italy recognizes the institution.

Political parties were abolished when Fascism was installed in Italy and, when the Lateran treaty established Italian recognition of Catholic Action, members of the old parties who were not in sympathy with Fascism joined it. Charges that the organization was participating improperly in politics were made recently by newspapers, and Fascist students engaged in riotous demonstrations against Catholic institutions. The church authorities have reiterated their denial that Catholic Action is active in politics.

The men were docketed as John Stewart, 38; Carl Downham, 24, and John Dunklee, 40. They were formerly employed at a Salvation Army center in Denver, police said.

The girl told Magistrate J. J. O'Connor she left home because her mother told her she would come between her mother and her father. She also said that she and Stewart planned to get married as soon as he got a job.

BIRTH CONTROL FIGHT BEFORE ASSEMBLY

Stand of Presbyterians on Issue to Be Decided Here; Election Contest Looming

The program of harmony of the one hundred and forty-third general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. faced a crucial test today as commissioners, assembling in Syria Mosque, laid plans for strenuous debate upon the whole question of birth control.

Brought to the floor of the assembly by the committee on bills and overtures, who recommended that no action be taken on proposals denouncing the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and asking the assembly's withdrawal from the Council for its indorsement of birth control, proponents were preparing to wage a vigorous battle for defeat of the recommendation.

BLUE LAW PRAISE

The report of the Board of Christian Education, presented this morning, commended the Pennsylvania Legislature for its stand opposing the changing the Blue Laws. It also recommended support for legislation to make obligatory an educational campaign in the public schools in behalf of the habits of living for which the Eighteenth Amendment stands. The report also recommended an educational program setting forth the whole of the prohibition question.

Concerning the League Court the report said:

"We look upon entrance of the United States into the World Court as a special duty of our nation, historically devoted to the ideals of peace. Further delay leads the peoples of the world to doubt our sincerity and gives good grounds for sinister implications."

U. S. Steel Stock Dips Under 85

NEW YORK, June 1.—United States Steel common melted away under the weight of further forced selling today, reaching a new low for the bear market at 84¾. Heavy offerings of the stock appeared ta the opening, with the first sale at 87¾, 3¼ points under Friday's close. With the dividend of $1.75 deducted, this represented a loss of $1.50.

The weak opening brought further selling into Steel as well as other high grade issues, and practically all of the so-called blue chips sold at new lows for the bear market.

Political disturbances abroad and stagnant business in many domestic lines were factors in the decline.

NEW SCHEDULE CAUSES JAM

Unusually large crowds this morning, especially at intersections, along the Emsworth, Avalon, Bellevue and other trolley lines running out of the Emsworth and Keating bars, were due to the new schedule, effective today, Pittsburgh Railways officials explained.

A decrease in patronage of 10 to 12 per cent, with the closing of schools, they said, made a shortened service necessary From the Emsworth barn, 26 cars with trailers, were reduced to 22 single cars, but it was explained the intervals at the peak period had been decreased from five to three minutes. From the Keating terminal, the 24 single and trailer units had been cut to 18, but the interim at the rush hours had been lessened a minute, being now seven and one-half.

The congestion this morning, they declared, was not unusual with the initial operation of a new schedule.

PARK MOVES TO BRING TRIALS

Earl H. Reed, Counsel for Independent Auditors, Is Made Special Assistant

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today asked the June grand jury to investigate charges of purchasing and contract irregularities in the City Supplies Bureau with a view to criminal prosecution. He appointed Earl F. Reed as special assistant district attorney in charge of the prosecution. Reed has been counsel for the Citizens' Committee's auditors.

Judge George C. Moore, presiding at the jury sessions, which started today, said the request would be granted. He told Park that other court business now on the dockets would require two weeks. Then, he said, he would call in the jurors for special instructions and start the investigation.

25 WITNESSES

The district attorney said at least 25 subpenas would be issued.

Reed, Park said, was specially equipped for the prosecutor's post because he has been counsel for Main & Co. in its audit of the Supplies Bureau's affairs recently made for the Citizens' Committee.

The district attorney's presentment to the jury read:

"It has come to the attention of your petitioner, from various sources which he believes are reliable, that there have existed in the Department of Supplies in the City of Pittsburgh various alleged irregularities in the awarding of public contracts for supplies and merchandise necessary for use in said city in the carrying on of its municipal functions.

"If the aforesaid matters be true, it is of great public importance, and there is a pressing necessity for ascertaining the truth of these accusations, so that, if true, the persons responsible therefore may be brought to justice."

CLAIMS VINDICATION

Prior to presenting his request, Park, addressing the jury, said:

"Several months ago alleged irregularities in the Department of Supplies were brought to the public's attention. At that time there was considerable criticism of the district attorney's office because we did not move immediately for a grand jury investigation.

"We felt then—and we do now—that it would have been almost impossible to arrive at the facts through the medium of a grand jury investigation. We felt that could only be done by propertly trained auditors

"We feel that the fact that a large group of such trained and professional auditors required a long time to investigate these matters has entirely vindicated our stand.

"We now have available for use the audit reports of two separate and reputable auditing concerns.

"Their reports are alleged to bring to light certain irregularities which we consider of sufficient import to warrant presentation for an order directing the grand jury to investigate."

REED WILLING

Reed, informed of his appointment as special prosecutor in the case, said:

"I have the utmost confidence in Mr. Park and will be glad to help him in any way I can."

The District Attorney's announcement of Reed's appointmen read:

"Because Mr. Reed is thoroughly informed as to the mat-

Boy Who Gulped Lipstick Holder Loses Life

Seven-year-old John Ginkel, of Freyburg, Clarion County, early today lost his battle with death from pneumonia, which set in after a lipstick container, which he accidentally swallowed while using as a whistle, lodged in his lung May 22. He died at 6:30 a. m. in Passavant Hospital, where two unsuccessful attempts had had been made to remove the object with a bronchoscope.

Physicians were hopeful of the child's recovery until Friday, when his condition became critical. For a time, according to hospital attaches, it appeared that the object would dislodge itself.

In his home in the Leechburg road, New Kensington, Billy Armitage, 8, still was unconscious, 17 days after he was injured by an automobile near his home. Billy was removed from the Citizens General Hospital in New Kensington to his home yesterday. He is suffering from a blood clot on his brain. Physicians are waiting for his condition to improve before operating to remove the clot.

Short Sentence Set Aside In Gin Party Death

VALPARAISO, Ind., June 1.—(INS.)—The one-to-10 years' prison sentence imposed upon Virgil Kirkland for the gin party attack on his 18-year-old sweetheart, Arlene Draves, which resulted in the girl's death, was set aside by Circuit Judge Grant Crumpacker today, pending decision on the state's new move to increase the penalty.

Kirkland, now in the state reformatory in Pendleton, was ordered returned to the jurisdiction of Judge Crumpacker for a hearing on the state's contention that a 1929 statute provides a penalty of from five to 21 years for the crime of which the youth was convicted.

The state, meanwhile, announced it was also investigating Kirkland's age, among other things connected with the case. The boy's mother, Mrs. Elmer Kirkland, has sworn he was under 21. He was sentenced under the juvenile act.

Aviation Man Boards 'Sub' At Sea; Says It Excels Aircraft for Polar Trip

By HERMAN GIESKE
Staff Writer Aboard the Trans-Arctic Submarine Nautilus.

By RADIO, VIA STATION WRH, NEW LONDON, Conn., June 1.—Anthony Fokker, noted airplane designer, was a passenger aboard the trans-Arctic submarine Nautilus, following ner dive off Bartletts Reef here Saturday.

For the first time it was revealed that Fokoker is one of the financial backers of Sir Hubert Wilkins' expedition under the ice to the North Pole.

Fokker, aboard his yacht, Helga, joined the Nautilus at sea after a run from New York Harbor. Among those who accompanied him aboard the Nautilus were Mr. and Mrs. Carter Tiffany.

Commenting on Sir Hubert's expedition and the diving operations of the Nautilus, Fokker said:

"Traveling around the Nautilus (in his yacht) was one of the most interesting experiences of my life. I have been aboard submarines before; have made an eight-hour run in a U-boat.

"But I was particularly struck with the expert way in which the Nautilus was handled. Therefore, I am confirmed in my belief that Sir Hubert will be successful in this expedition, as he has in all his others.

"In fact I think a submarine has a better chance to reach the North Pole than an airplane. If something goes wrong with a submarine, it may be conveniently repaired en route. If something goes wrong in an airplane in the Arctic, the chances are the fliers are doomed."

EXPERT BACKS LINCOLN MIND THEORY

Noted Psychiatrist Upholds Belief President Suffered From Mental Affliction

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The viewpoint that Abraham Lincoln suffered from a mental affliction—as contained in a paper to be delivered by Dr. A. A. Brill before the American Psychiatric Association, which opens its meetings today in Toronto—found support today from Dr. Harry Stack Sullivan, noted psychiatrist and specialist in schizophrenia.

The statement by Dr. Brill that "Lincoln was a schizoid-maniac personality who had definite attacks of this malady" has been attacked by his colleagues and bids fair to lead to a tempestuous session when the treatise is read to the convention next Friday. Dr. Sullivan said:

"It seems to me that the recorded history of Lincoln's childhood and youth provides us with a remarkable history of innocuous influence playing upon a schizoid personality which eventuated in the production of a singularly successful politician and statesman.

"His mother died when he was 9 years old and then a stepmother came in and this had a lot to do with directing Lincoln's personality groove."

The psychiatrist said that certain partnerships formed by Lincoln and his tendency in youth to entertain with story telling rather than paying attention to business indicated "he was somewhat deviated from cold reasonableness" and "rather upholds the theory of poorly adjusted youth."

ters involved in the audit, I am asking him to accept an appointment as an assistant district attorney to assist me in presenting evidence to the grand jury.

"It would require considerable time for myself or any of my regular assistants to study the reports and data, which would cause delay in getting the investigation started.

"Because of Mr. Reed's special knowledge of the matters involved, I believe much time will be saved in the presentation of the facts, and that the work of the grand jury will be greatly expedited with the result of a considerable saving of money to the taxpayers.

FAIR INQUIRY

"It will be my aim to conduct a complete, impartial and fair investigation of the entire matter."

Convening of the June grand jury was delayed by the absence of Mrs. Anna L. Smith, who had not been notified she had been drawn for service. A change in address from 1220 Hill street, Wilkinsburg, to 5 Braddock road, R. F. D. 3, was said to have been responsible for the error.

One other juror was dismissed, she had moved to Kansas City. As the result 23 jurors will hear the June cases.

Judge Moore issued an order that the jury be kept available for duty in July and August, if needed.

A suggestion that he might surcharge former Director of Supplies Bertram L. Succop with $69,725.55 which the city lost during 1929 and 1930 through high bids alone, has been made to Controller J. P Kerr in a letter from the Citizens' Committee and the Allegheny County League of Women Voters. Two thousand "business facts," contained in the new publication, indicate that the low point in business volume was established in January, and that each subsequent month has recorded a further slight improvement after making allowances for normal seasonal movements.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Going into the last month of what is proving to be among the "leanest" financial years of the government's history, the Treasury today was preparing to increase its public debt more than $600,000,000 to met operating costs and to met a deficit June 30 of more than $1,000,000,000.

Secretary Mellon announced an $800,000,000 3⅛ per cent bond issue, callable in 15 and maturing in 18 years, to be dated June 15. This is in excess of about $210,000,000 over the security requirements on that date.

Judging from the present situation, receipts for the year beginning July 1 will be $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 less than in 1931, with a probability that expenditures cannot be much under those of this year. Barring a revision of taxes or devising other sources of revenue, the deficit in 1932 will be enormous. The situation can hardly be saved now by a business pickup.

WILSON DEATH PLOT CHARGED

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP.)—The story of an alleged plot to poison Woodrow Wilson while he was attending the Paris peace conference is contained in the book "America's Black Chamber" by Maj. Herbert O. Yardley, in charge of the American Cryptographic Bureau during the World War.

The author declared a decoded message which fell into his hands while serving with the peace commission in Paris disclosed the plot. He writes:

"The reader may well appreciate the shock I received as I deciphered a telegram which reported an entente plot to assassinate President Wilson either by administering a slow poison or by giving him the influenza in ice. President Wilson's first sign of illness occurred while he was in Paris and he was soon to die a lingering death."

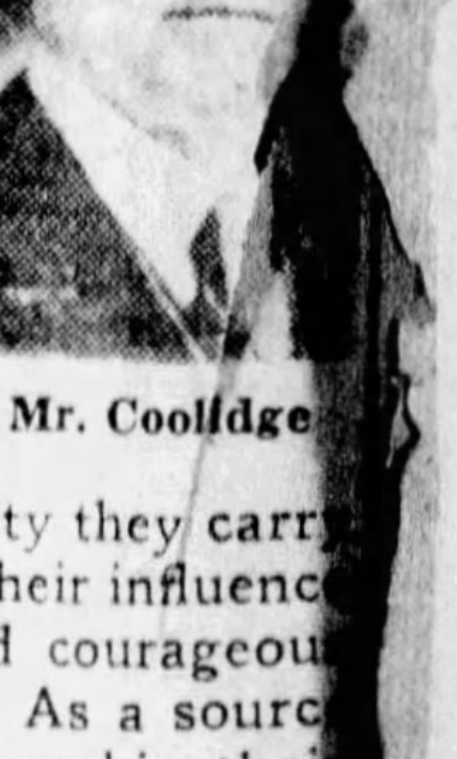
Coolidge Lauds National Movement to Aid Boys

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., June 1.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

During the first four days in June the Boys' Club Federation of America will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary in Washington. This national movement is sponsored by over 40 of our most prominent business men. It includes about 250 clubs which have doubled in number in 10 years. They are located in 132 cities and have a membership of over 250,000 with an investment of over $20,000,000. The object of this organization is to provide opportunity through wholesome activity under trained supervision for normal development of underprivileged boys.



Mr. Coolidge

These clubs are purposely located in congested centers where, without them, the street would be the gathering place for the boys. They are open to all boys at a nominal cost and provide such recreation facilities as gymnasium, shower bath, vocational training and libraries. By means of holy charity they carry light into otherwise darkened lives. Through their influence boys are taught that they can be active and courageous while being law-abiding, manly and straight. As a source of character building and preparation for citizenship their influence is beyond calculaiton. This is practical philanthropy.

GOVERNORS TO PERMIT PINCHOT ANTI-UTILITIES SPEECH

GAG ATTEMPT ABANDONED AT PARLEY

Power Issue Likely to Stir Controversy; Managers Of Conference in Quandary

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., June 1.—The governors of half the states of the Union met here today in annual conference.

Presidential candidacies and national issues lurked in the fringes of the gathering but, so far as surface indications went, everything appeared as placid as a mill pond. Their program, which calls for three days of speechmaking about "state problems," is so designed and drawn as to steer the conference clear of every controversial issue.

But one state executive, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, refused to be repressed or to be confined within the narrow limits of the program makers. They put Gov. Pinchot down for a speech on "Timber Needs of the Future," but the volatile Pennsylvanian rebelled. Tomorrow he is going to tell his gubernatorial colleagues that the power trust is an octopus that is progressively swallowing the American people. He has prepared a speech which he proposes to deliver with typical Pinchot gusto that literally flays the utilities alive.

The conference managers are in a quandry. They do not relish Pinchot bolting their carefully prepared program, but they relish still less the publicity that might attend an effort to prevent him from making the speech. Hence, the consensus was today, as the conference opened, that Gov. Pinchot would be given free reign in his assault on the power trust, and the issue blanketed through nobody's replying to his speech.

It may be, however, that the conference managers will be disappointed, for the question of power control is a live issue with some of the governors here, among them Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, who is probably the foremost Democratic presidential possibility. Like Pinchot, Roosevelt considers the power issue one of the greatest confronting the country today.

'63 HELD AFTER OHIO RED RIOT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 1.—(AP.)—Sixty-three of the 800 members and sympathizers of the Young Communists League who battled police Saturday night were summoned into court today to answer charges ranging from inciting a riot to disturbing the peace.

Two other demonstrators and four policemen were in hospitals and an undetermined number were nursing injuries. A dozen minors were held for juvenile authorities, while the rest were scattering back to their homes in half a dozen states.

The trouble started when Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan and Chief Paul E. Lyden refused to permit the demonstrators to parade Saturday as part of a nationawide celebration of "Youth Day."

Pinchot Saves 2 Youths From Electric Chair

BELLEFONTE, Pa., June 1.—(AP.)—Four and one-half hours before Frank Cantilla and Carl Crow were to have been electrocuted this morning, Gov. Gifford Pinchot telephoned a respite from French Lick Springs, Ind., where he is attending a governor's conference.

The two youths, who had resigned themselves to their fate, were aroused from a light sleep by prison officials and told of the executive's action.

They appeared dazed for a moment and then resumed the attitude of unconcern which they have been assuming.

The condemned men apparently did not realize that such last-minute respites are without precedent in recent years in the state's history. The Governor telephoned to Warden Ashe at 2:30 a. m.

The men were to have gone to the electric chair at 7 a. m. to pay for the penalty for the slaying of Louis Hoffman near Johnstown in 1928 in a bootlegging feud.

Joseph Parsi and Frank Powell, convicted for the same crime, are under sentence to die next Monday. A fifth man convicted, Tony Polumbo, received a sentence of life imprisonment.

SEEK DIAMOND'S GIRL IN HOLDUP

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 1.—(AP.)—Police were seeking a warrant for Marion Roberts, former show girl friend of "Legs" Diamond, alleged New York racketeer, as the result of the identification of her picture as that of a girl who participated in a drug store robbery here Friday night.

The girl, it is reported, entered the store with two men, covered the employes with pistols, and escaped with $100 in cash and a check for $27. Miss Roberts is being sought to answer an indictment in New York state charging second degree assault, as Diamond's companion the night he was alleged to have attacked two truckmen.

CAVALRY TROOP ENDS 80-MILE JOURNEY

Reserve Officers 'Invade' Ligonier After Rough Trip Over Mountain Trails

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

DUNBAR, Pa., June 1.—Fifteen United States Cavalry reserve officers carried honor and glory back home to Pittsburgh and made history for the 308th Regiment at the end of an 80-mile trip over the mountains to Ligonier and back in a two-day tactical maneuver, the first ever held in these parts. It started and ended on the farm of B. C. Cance, who maintains a cavalry remount headquarters here.

It was a brilliant display of horsemanship and cavalry stamina and brought enthusiastic commendation from the regular army instructor, Maj. Eustice L. Hubbard, as well as Col. E. Swift, regular army artillery officer, who accompanied the riders as guest commander.

GRUELING TEST

The feat was a grueling test. Riding all day Saturday in a broiling sun over narrow, winding mountain trails, slipping and sliding over rocks; splashing through turbulent mountain streams and clambering up embankments, the column halted for the night in the cool and restful valley along Lynn Run at the cabin of Lieut. Leroy S. Goldsworthy, about three miles from Rector.

The bivouac proved a treat and side by side with a roaring camp fire just outside the picket line, man and beasts settled down for the night. It was story-telling time with a song or two for variety.

GET EARLY START

Up at dawn and in the saddle at 7, officers and mounts were ready for the 40-mile trek back through the hills, stiffness and soreness forgotten. Lieut. Col. George H. Cherrington, unit commander, took charge, assigning his officers in turn to scout, gait-maker and other troop posts encountered in regular campaign. Among the regular 308th Regiment officers, in addition to Col. Cherrington, were:

Capts. George W. Conner and Harry B. Peebles, First Lieuts. Goldsworthy, Ellis O. Keller and A. B. Thomas, Second Lieuts. Morris Linton, Elliott E. Perritt, Charles Zweibel, and Carlton B. McNamara, and Sergts. James W. Young and B. C. Cence. Maj. Louis M. Goehring, 371st Field Artillery, and Col. Swift were guests.

LA HAVRE, France, June 1.—(INS.)—Disconsolate and subdued after three days in the poorly furnished tourists' hotel here, Texas Guinan and her troupe of American night club girls today sadly contemplated a forced return to the white lights of Broadway.

Despite frantic appeals to the port authorities here and to government officials in Paris, the blonde entertainer and her "gang" faced deportation. The government barred the troupe on the ground they had attempted to enter the country on tourist authorizations, instead of under an artists' contract to work in the country.

The bevy of beauteous belles and their chaperon were guarded closely and were not allowed to leave their hotel.

CITIZENS HELD RESPONSIBLE IN GOVERNMENT

"We have as good government as we pay for. When we are willing to pay the price we will have good laws and we will have good representatives."

Dr. Mudge said our religion is a religion of facts, adding:

"The great outstanding symbol of Christianity is an empty cross. It is not a symbol of a defeated victim but a triumphant victor."

CONFLICT RISES IN CHURCH ASSEMBLY

Sessions Expected to Be Placid Are Torn by Strife Over Stand on Council

By THE REV. DR. HERMAN C. WEBER

Director, Canvass Department, General Council.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church found the temperature of Syria Mosque rather high at its sessions Saturday, the third day of its deliberation, and developed a bit of sultry mental temperature as well. What was expected to be a placid and perhaps characterless meeting of the highest court of the church shows signs of a desire to go down into history as having a mentality all its own.

When Dr. Mark A. Matthews moved early in the session in what was expected to be a purely formal matter, the adoption of the usual benevolence budget of the church, to cut out the item assigned to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, he started something. He was sustained by the floor with the modification that the item should be referred to the general council of the assembly, which is the budget-making body, for reconsideration.

COUNCIL REBUKED

Later in the session the bills and overtures committee came in with a report which was carefully worded to remove the subject of birth control from the assembly horizon, and at the same time to rebuke the Federal Council for the impression which it had apparently conveyed that its report on marriage had the indorsement of the various denominations. The report of the bills and overtures committee was offered as an easy and satisfactory way out of what promised contentious debate. The assembly deferred action until today and set a time for full discussion.

It may, perhaps, be said fairly that the assembly has not yet found itself, but that a substantial section of the commissioners are from Missouri and are going to satisfy themselves in all directions as to the policies and organization of the church.

The devotional services have been moving and ably directed. A message from President Hoover made a deep impression on the body and an adequate reply was framed. Many addresses from other church bodies, presented by accredited delegates, were heard at the morning session, an especially able message coming from the Rev. James Black, pastor of Free St. George's Church, Edinburgh.

WAR DEAD HONORED

At the devotional service in memory of patriot dead the stage of the Mosque was filled with a larger company of veterans than at any previous assembly meeting. The Rev. R. S. Snyder, of Utica, N. Y., a former chaplain in the A. E. F., made the address.

The important standing committee of the assembly on the first of the four great boards of the church, the committee on the board of pensions, made its presentation to the assembly. In spite of the depression this board was reported to have added substantially to its assets and was developing and extending its work of enlisting all churches and their ministers in its service pension arrangements. All the recommendations of the committee were accepted without dissent or change although many questions were asked from the floor and every effort was made to answer them.

U. P. ASSEMBLY HEARS M'BRIDE

By the REV. JOHN E. SIMPSON,

Pastor North U. P. Church.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 1.—Delegates to the National Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church heard Superintendent F. Scott McBride, of the Anti-Saloon League assert that the next election would "either nail down prohibition or make it a contest for generations to come." He predicted President Hoover's renomination and said, providing John J. Raskob is ousted as national chairman, the Democrats will have a dry candidate "who will have a chance for election."

McBride said:

"Hoover is giving prohibition its chance by placing men in charge of enforcement who wish prohibition to succeed."

Today's session was featured by the report of the Women's Board and Board of American Missions made by Mrs. J. D. Sands, president, of Pittsburgh. She reported 1,835 organizations in America, with a membreship of 48,785; also 180 organizations with 6,840 members in India and Egypt. These gave $546,675 to mission work during the year besides the annual thank-offering of $142,909. The organization supports 141 missionaries and 112 Bible women.

Presbyterian Assembly Notes

A popular meeting under the direction of the Board of National Missions will be held this evening in Syria Mosque.

The Rev. Dr. David Riddle Breed, whose contribution to the spiritual culture of children, predominated his 61 years of service to the ministry, was honored at a special children's program yesterday in the Bellefield Presbyterian Church. Dr. Breed pioneered in the presentation of the Gospel in unique children's sermons.

A recommendation of the general council, opposing suggestions that the assembly meet bi-annually or tri-annually rather than yearly, was approved by the assembly without dissent. Proposals to reduce the assembly from 924 to 560 members were referred to committee.

Annual national oratorical contests for high school student members of the Presbyterian Church were ordered continued.

Clara Has Unlucky Day When She Takes Daisy Into Her Home

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service.

(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc. Reproduction in part or in whole prohibited.)

CHAPTER XII.

Clara never has done things half way. She told Daisy De Voe the story of her life from the time she was born. Daisy, calculating, shrewd and with everything in the world to gain, played her cards well. She listened to Clara. She flattered her and she sympathized with her. She acted the part of the unselfish, loveable friend to perfection. Had Clara been older, less trusting, she would have seen right through Miss Daisy De Voe's little plan, but all she saw was another girl, lonely like herself, but who had never had the good fortune to make a motion picture salary.

One day, when Daisy was particularly pathetic, Clara suggested that the hair dresser come and live with her. The two names, Bow and Deboe, sounded so much alike that when one of the servants said "Miss Deboe," Clara thought they said "Miss Bow" and vice versa. To simplify matters Daisy Deboe became Daisy De Voe. Maybe she should have been called Daisy the Foe, for if ever there was an unlucky day in Clara Bow's life, it was the day she took this young woman into her home.

Luxury for Daisy

Miss De Voe, who had been a poor girl, suddenly found herself in Clara's comfortable home. Surrounded by luxury. She found herself not only Clara's bosom friend, companion and confidante, but also her business manager, and secretary. Bogar Rogers, a brother of Adela Rogers St. John, followed Tui Lorraine as secretary and after his resignation the shrewd Miss De Voe suggested that Clara let her manage her financial affairs, which, according to the ex-hairdresser, were in a terrible shape.

"Let me straighten out the accounts," she said to Clara. "People are spending too much of your money."

Clara, who hates the humdrum routine of housekeeping and who never could keep her household accounts straight, was delighted to have Miss De Voe assume the responsibility.

So much did Clara think of her new friend that when she was invited to dinner she would invariably take Miss De Voe. I remember a dinner given at the Roosevelt Hotel during the time Clara was engaged to Harry Richman. With Clara, upon her arrival, this same Daisy De Voe who was dressed much better than Clara and who wore several pieces of expensive jewelry.

Meets Ellin Mackay

Irving Berlin, the popular composer and one of the most beloved men who ever came to Hollywood, brought his lovely young wife, Ellin Mackay to the dinner with him. Ellin, who had heard something of the forlorn childhood of Clara, expressed a desire to meet her. Irving Berlin, at the time, was writing songs for Harry Richman's first motion picture and, naturally, the two men saw a great deal of each other. Ellin was curious to see this child about whom so much had been written and of whose pranks Harry used to tell. The dinner was given by Joseph Schenck so that Mrs. Berlin could meet Richman's fiancee.

Ellin Mackay Berlin, aristocratic, refined and gentle, was introduced to Clara. Clara in a bright red tam o' shanter, tight-fitting sweater and sport skirt, looked like some naughty school girl.

"How old are you?" she asked Mrs. Berlin during the course of the evenings. Ellin told her.

"You know, I don't think you would look so old," Clara replied, "if you wouldn't dress in such funny clothes. You should wear colors."

Bow Frankness

Mrs. Berlin, instead of being annoyed, was amused.

I tell this story because it was so characteristic of the Bow frankness. Clara had no intention of being rude and she wouldn't have hurt Mrs. Berlin's feelings for a thousand dollars. She liked her and thought she could help her.

The Harry Richman romance is so recent that nearly everyone remembers it. Of all Clara's love affairs this is the one that kept the Broadway tongues wagging as well as those in Hollywood.

Harry Richman, entertainer, night club owner, a man who had been in the public eye because of his many romances, came to Hollywood to make a picture for Joseph Schenck. He was introduced to Clara Bow. While his fame exclusively belong to Broadway, Clara was known the world over. Harry loves publicity.

So in the late spring of 1930, the red-headed screen star's engagement was announced to the song and dance man. Then followed one of the most hectic romances of Clara's career. It was a case of On Again, Off Again, Gone Again Finnegan. One day all would be well and the two of them would set a definite date for their wedding. Then would come a bitter quarrel. Perhaps Harry would be annoyed because Clara kept him waiting hours for dinner, or Clara would hear that Harry had been flirting with some extra girl.

Like Each Other

However, strange as it may seem, these two really had a genuine affection for each other. Harry would amusingly relate story after story featuring Clara, while, Clara would tell of Harry's loveable nature. I remember one night, when Clara waited in the Roosevelt Hotel until 4 o'clock for Harry, who had promised to meet her there.

Harry gave her a diamond ring—her first real engagement ring—and she wore it as proudly as any little shop girl might have worn the pledge of her coming marriage. He also gave her a diamond necklace and a Great Dane dog, but always when Harry did give Clara a present the whole world would hear it. Headlines would appear the next day. Clara, who had all her life been the one to give, found for the first time that there were men who bought their women gifts. She was as intrigued with this Broadway favorite as he was with her. No two people ever had more battles and no two people ever did more kissing and making up.

Clara's friends are bitter against Harry Richman because they feel that in engaging himself to her he did it merely as a publicity stunt. On the other hand, Harry's friends say that he full intended to marry the screen star until all of the scandal of the Cal-Neva resort and the Daisy De Voe theft came out. All I can say that if Harry Richman had, up to that time, intended to marry Clara and then he let these stories turn him from her, Clara is lucky she didn't marry him.

Daisy De Voe's plotting against the "It" girl, charges of talebearing which led to the breaking of the Bow engagement with Harry Richman, and other hitherto unknown details leading up to the supreme tragedy in the life of Clara Bow are told in tomorrow's installment.

U. S. DELEGATE TELLS POLICY ON 'DOPE'

Strict Limitation of Crude Materials Held Surest Way to End Narcotic Evil

By WINIFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

GENEVA, June 1. — John K. Caldwell, chairman of the American delegation and vice president of the International Narcotic Conference of the League of Nations, today made a good, plain statement about dope in good, plain English.

He told the conference that America is not so far quite satisfied with any of the plans offered for a determined and effective fight against the curse of narcotic drugs.

Caldwall spoke quietly, with no dramatic emphasis, but made it clear that America wants the illicit traffic in drugs stopped. Not some drugs, but all habit-forming narcotic drugs. He said:

"America believes that the one way to stop the flooding of the world with the poison of narcotics is to limit production of the crude materials from which narcotic drugs are made."

CALDWELL HITS STRAIGHT

There were no glittering generalities in Caldwell's declaration of American principles. To hear him say calmly and forcibly just what the United States wants, how the United States is willing and eager to co-operate in any practical, straightforward, honest plan to control the curse of narcotics, was like sitting down to a dinner of roast beef, baked potatoes and the rest of the essentials after a diet of chocolate creams.

Up to Caldwell's statement, nothing but platitudes and generalities had been uttered.

ECONOMIC VIEW STRESSED

Gaston Bourgois, of France, took an entirely economic point of view but dressed his reference to francs and sous with sentimental eloquence.

Setsuzo Sawada, of Japan, opposed the quota system, but wished to be sure that Japan gets her fair share of the quota if that plan carries.

Sawada wishes the conference to take into serious consideration the equality of commerce and the development of industry, but Japan is of the opinion that a government monopoly of narcotic manufacture and distribution will help commerce and industry as well as protect the health and morals of the people.

Sir Malcolm Delevingne, of Great Britain, talked in support of the quota plan, but made no definite practical suggestions.

GERMAN STARTS FLURRY

Baron Von Rheinbaben, speaking for Germany, said his government has been cutting down the manufacture and consumption of narcotics almost day by day since the war.

He threw consternation into the conference by mentioning esters (narcotic acid compounds), which the other speakers have taken pains to hide like some persons do to the poor relatives who turn up at the wrong time. He did not mention limitation of codein, a terrible drug.

Down with morphine—maybe.
Out with cocaine—perhaps.
Away with opium—when convenient.

All this we heard over and over, but there was not one practical word as to practical methods; not one whisper concerning habit-forming drugs that come from opium and the coca leaf and are called by some harmless name.

Then rose Caldwell with his definite, straightforward plan for nations which really want to kill the dope ring.

What is the good of limiting morphine, cutting down cocaine and throwing heroin into the bottom of the sea if not a word is said about laudanum, codein or half a dozen other drugs which are as bad if not worse?

We've gone to great lengths to serve men completely in outfitting for hot weather.

These three-piece suits, for instance, are light as a beach-breeze, cool as the surf and are tailored just as finely as our heavier wool suits. One of the most gratifying features is their perfect fit, in which our wide range of models—regulars, stouts, longs, etc.—play a contributing part.

Try one—you'll feel better, work better and look better, mark our words!

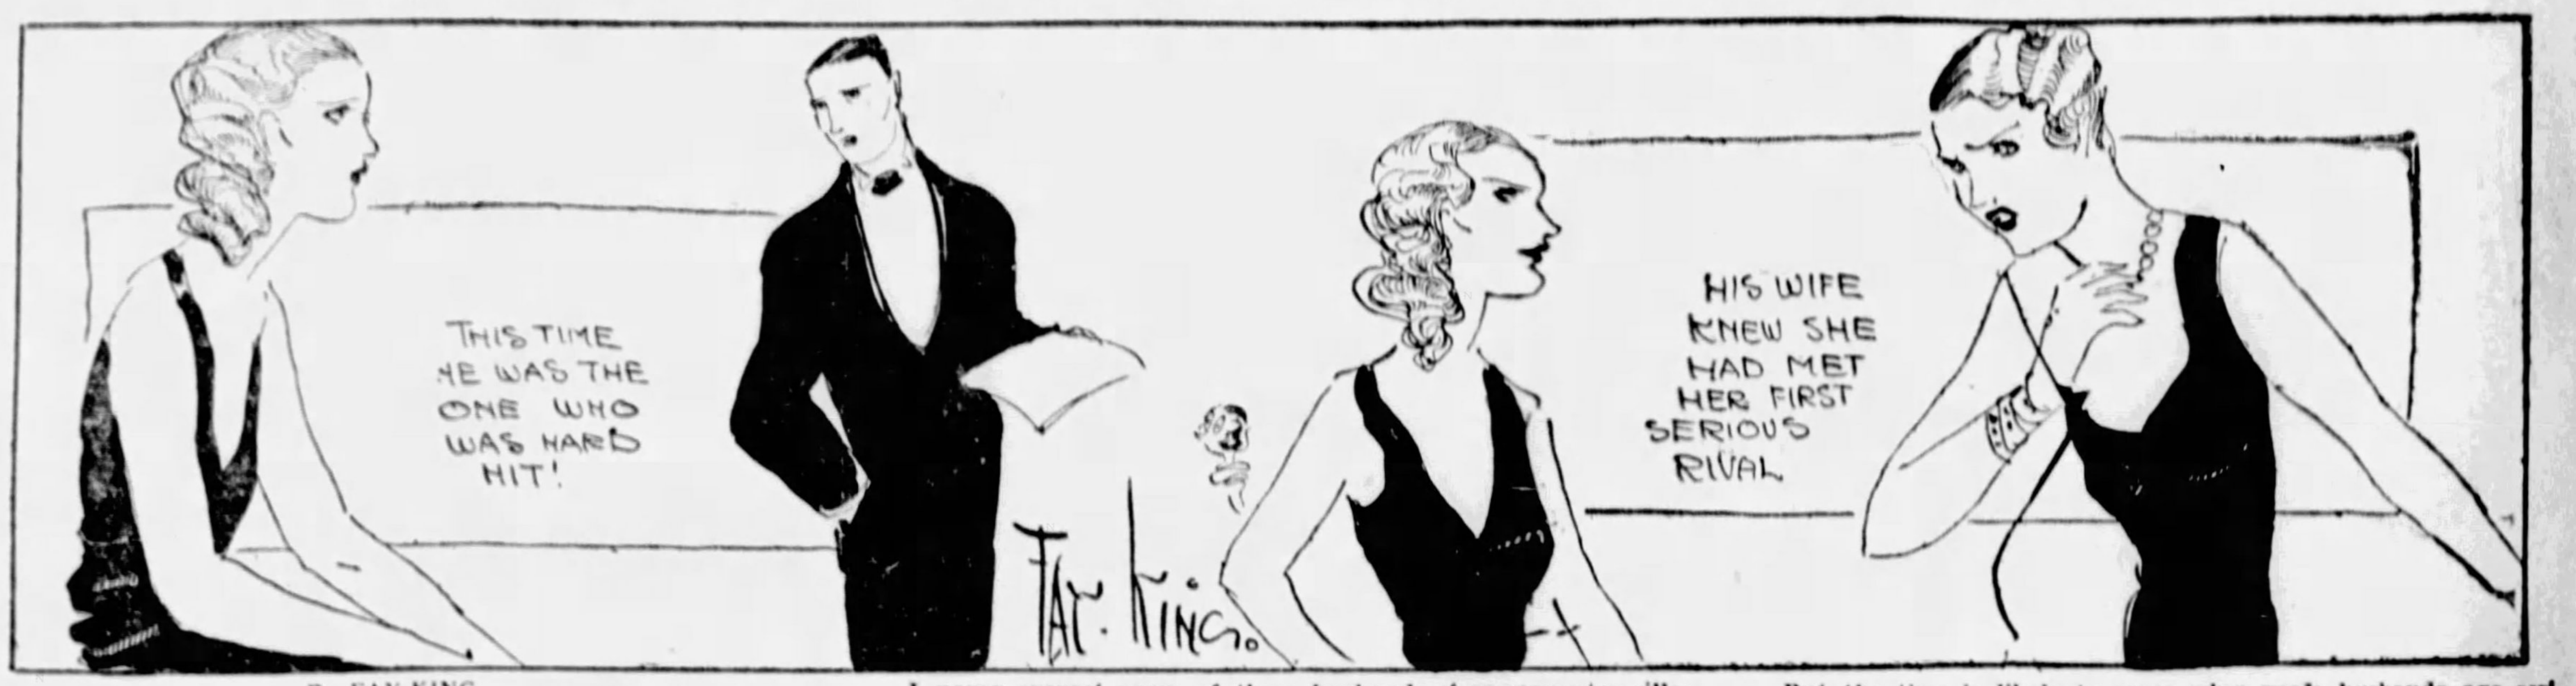
Slapping Rivals One Way for Wives to Keep Husbands, Fay King's View



THIS TIME HE WAS THE ONE WHO WAS HARD HIT!
HIS WIFE KNEW SHE HAD MET HER FIRST SERIOUS RIVAL
FAY KING

By FAY KING

One never reads in the love advice columns anything regarding the advisability of slapping one's rival in public.

Yet a number of wives have found this a most successful way of holding their husbands.

I never suspect some of these husbands of encouraging silly girls, knowing the scene which will surely take place sooner or later.

It seems to flatter and delight them—so long as they are still more interested in their wives than they are in the girls who get slapped.

But the time is likely to come when such husbands are seriously smitten by some girl and then the slapping scene is as great a flop as it had been a success.

And slapping wives know perfectly well when they can't slap!

Must a Beau Shower Gifts On Girl to Show Love?

Must Romeo shower Juliet ...th flowers, candy and what ...t, to show that his is True ...ve?

This question wouldn't worry ...ude, if it weren't for the ...ks.

For she's perfectly satisfied ...h her Hero as he is. But ...y time he ambles over and ...t bring her an armful of ...es or a hefty box of chawk-... why mom 'n' dad 'n' Sis-Sue all give him the dog-and her the horse laugh.

"I wish you'd tell me what ... think," she moans. "Must a ...ellow shower his girl with gifts to show that he really loves her?"

What's your answer, Sissy? Should Gents be judged by what they give?

"Dear Sally: I've profited a lot by the answers you have given other people, and now I am coming to you with a problem of my own. Maybe it will seem silly to you, but it has me all balled up, and I don't know what to think. Here it is:

"Do you think that a boy in order to show a girl that he really cares for her, must shower her with gifts of flowers and candy, and so forth . . . and must he take her to every show he goes to?

Sent Easter Card

"That's the big argument that's going on in my family.

"The boy I love is 21 years ...l. He is the finest and clean-... boy I have ever been out with. He has been working at a good steady job for the last three years, and he averages between six and eight dollars a day, so I know that it is not lack of money that keeps him from buying things for me . . . and is stirring up all this heated talk. He is a fine fellow in every way, and he is wonderful to me. He treats me with all the respect in the world, and I sure appreciate him.

"But at Easter, for instance, he did not present me with a box of candy or a bunch of flowers. What he did was send me a very lovely Easter card. And honestly, I value that card more than anything else I ever got.

Family Disapproves

"But my whole family is laughing at me, and calling me a sap for liking Ed (that's his name), because I don't get presents from him all the time. They want me to stop going out with him, because he isn't always bringing me things.

"What do you think? Are they right? I love him, and I don't want to go with any other boy in the whole world. I think he is wonderful. So—

"While I'm waiting for your answer, I'm going to keep on loving him for what he is . . . and not for what he can give me. What are you going to tell me, Sally? MAUDE.

What am I going to tell you? That you're a real sweet kid, honey, and Ed's a lucky guy to have you . . . and I suspect you're lucky to have him, even if he isn't a handout Hank!

But maybe some of the other gals won't agree with me. Maybe they'll think the family's right. How about it, Susy? Clara? Do you insist that your B. F. shall be a sugar papa before he can become a heavy date?

However, habits of regular outdoor exercise, particularly walking, golf, hill climbing, rowing, hunting and other outdoor sports, are permissible. No exercise should be taken that results in over exertion or fatigue.

Let the girl who takes no trouble to hide her boredom, take heed. There are too many of her type these days, pretty little slimps to whom life has nothing new to offer.

Helena Brixton Tries to Corral Veritzen's Attention.

I would have been something other than a feminine human being if I had not indulged myself in a bit of mental gloating over the expression in Dickey's eyes as he listened to Philip Veritzen's adroit interpretation of his acquiescence in the miniature theater plan for Junior. His eyes shifted from one direction to another exactly as might those of a boy about to be cornered in a game of tag, and expecting every second the final tap.

Dicky is a good loser, however, and above everything else he dreads a scene, so I was not surprised when Mr. Veritzen finished speaking to hear him say with every appearance of heartiness:

"Very nice of you to put it that way, old man. But I warn you I shall be a rigid auditor and insist upon repaying you for any outlay."

"We shan't quarrel on that score, I am sure," Mr. Veritzen said, smiling broadly, and then, to my great relief, Helena Brixton came over to us.

"This takes me back to the days when we used to rig a blanket across the barn loft and give two-pin admission shows," she said.

I did not understand the impulse which prompted me to say quickly:

"Oh, but you should hear the plans Mr. Veritzen has for transforming this corner for Junior. Won't you tell her about them?" I turned to my employer. "I shall have to go over and engineer the hanging of those window curtains, but I'll be right back."

The meaning of the impulse came to me, however, before I had taken 10 steps away from the spot where Helena Brixton, with prettily clasped hands, was exclaiming, "Oh, Mr. Veritzen! Do tell me about it. I know it must be perfectly marvelous," and excoriated myself savagely all the way to the windows, where Mrs. Ticer and Jerry were struggling with the window curtains.

I had read Helena Brixton, I was sure, with accuracy, at the time she first came to the farmhouse for her long postponed reunion with Lillian. Beautiful, good, loyal to her husband, she possessed the urge felt by so many beautiful women, the desire to show how attractive men considered her. She was too highminded, or too prudently fearful of reciprocal measures, to try her wiles on another woman's husband, but to her Philip Veritzen was fair game, and when I had heard of his frequent calls at The Larches, I had surmised that she valued those visits as much for the essentially false supposition that they were filched from me and valued by me, as for her natural pleasure in acting as hostess to so famous a man as the great theatrical producer.

It was not a pleasant vision, this, which I had of the hidden depths of my own soul. That no emotion save vanity was involved, did not lessen my disgust at myself. While I gave outward attention to the curtain problems of Mrs. Ticer, and other details which were brought to me in the next few minutes, I held court on myself with such success that I was able to feel no slightest twinge of even wounded vanity when Helena came up to me a little later with Philip Veritzen at her side.

"I've just been telling Mr. Veritzen," she said, prettily, "that I'm afraid we're in the way down here. Everybody's so busy, and you all know just what to do, while we're all at sea. Besides, your father and Mr. Graham's mother are up there alone, save for our dancing young people, who are paying no attention to anybody but themselves, you may be sure. I thought you wouldn't mind if we went up and talked to them a bit."

Was there a bit of malice, conscious or unconscious, in that apparently innocuous phrase, "I thought you wouldn't mind?" I could not tell, but I had my answer ready as soon as she finished speaking.

"How wonderfully thoughtful!" I said, and knew that I was only recognizing a truth. She is given to such generous impulses. "You're not in the way, however, down here, but I do believe you two can help us best in keeping Mother Graham from getting restless. She says she does not want to see the playroom until it is all finished, but I know my father is anxious to get down here. You will solve a problem for him."

"I am so glad," Mrs. Brixton said, enthusiastically. "Come along, Prince Philip. Remember, you're the captain of this rescue party."

I stared after her for a startled fraction of a second. "Prince Philip," indeed!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The "Daughter-ly" Thing To Do

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly advise me as to whether it would be proper for me to write sort of an introductory letter to my husband's mother whom I have never met, and who lives in another state? We were married secretly about two months ago, and she has just been informed of our marriage. It will be a long time before I can go to see her, as my husband is working here. I would like to write to her and introduce myself. What should I say? Or should I wait until I hear from her first? B. H.

Under the circumstances it would be the gracious and thoughtful and "daughter-ly" thing of you to write to your mother-in-law. Of course it would be charming if she wrote to you, but perhaps she is waiting for the time when you will divulge the "secret;" perhaps she hesitates to write until you have told her this. This kind of letter can be especially charming, and you should write informally and chattily to her, telling her of yourself and your plans for the happiness of your new home.

Ask Permission of Her Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please tell me how I should inform a guest (from another city) who is visiting a mutual friend that I am entertaining in her honor? Do I ask permission of her hostess first?

2. When entertaining at a luncheon for my daughters, 12 and 15 years of age, should the young guests keep their hats on?

3. When having a bridge luncheon, does one keep the hat on during both luncheon and bridge?

4. Does the hostess at these affairs wear a hat if the party is held in her own home?

DOUBTFUL.

1. Yes, it is the courteous thing to ask permission of the hostess of your friend. She will want to make date-arrangements for the entertainment of her guest, and we should ask her permission as soon as we can, so that she may plan.

2. This is pretty young for this formality. I am sure that these young ladies would prefer to take off their hats. And they should do this.

3. Yes.

4. This is for the hostess to decide. Formal hostesses often wear their hats, this custom having come from England and the continent. But very often the hostess does not wear her hat, and she need not if she doesn't wish to.

Household Hints

Here are a few decorating hints—Use light materials in a dark room...Net curtains give an enlarging effect to a small room...fringe on cotton draperies frequently adds a finished touch with little additional expense...Draped back curtains are best if the room is gloomy or dark.

Old stockings are at least good for one thing. Save them, if you are contemplating moving, and wrap the legs of the prize chairs and tables with them. They will not tear like paper and yet are easily manipulated.

There will be no marks on your wall paper from collected dust on the backs of pictures if each frame has two rubber-headed tacks on the back, thus holding the frame away from the paper.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, June 1.

THAT SUPERSTITION gag is a funny thing. It's silly, really, how we humans take the thing seriously. That three-on-a-match gag, for instance. Most of us go for that. Or the black cat. Or the walking under a ladder. Or that thought of 13 being bad luck. Let me harp on that number 13 for a few minutes. Listen——

Up in the Sing Sing death house at the present moment re two birds who have been sentenced to die during the week [illegible] June 8th. One is Alphonse Corrato and the other is Joseph icari. Inasmuch as both Alphonse and Joseph were mur[illegible]rers by profession, I don't suppose anybody will go into vio[illegible]ent hysterics when the chair begins to sizzle. The only interest I have in them is that both, as Carl Lindsay tells me, are very superstitious.

To get into our little story, we first turn to a lady named Mrs. Rosina Volpe. For 20 years Rosina had been the wife of Giovanni Volpe—and she later informed the police that such a situation was by no means a bed of roses. Although Giovanni was not around to make any denials, his wife didn't worry about that. She said he had been beating her as a matter of habit ever since they were first married.

At any rate, after 20 years of this sort of thing, Mrs. Volpe became slightly punch-drunk. According to her own story, she decided that enough was enough. So she went to Mr. Alphonse Corrato and Mr. Joseph Caricari and unfolded to them the sad tale of a sad life.

After they had expressed the proper sympathies—as outlined in the book of etiquet for a case like that—they asked her what she would like them to do about it.

"I would like to have him killed," she said. "If you two enterprising boys would like to pick up a little money in your spare time, you can have the job. I'll pay you $500 for the work. But it must be neat."

Alphonse and Joseph were a little bit hurt by that last crack. They assured Rosina that their work was always neat and that she need have no worries on that score. This seemed to satisfy Rosina and she handed over $25 on account. It was agreed that she was to turn over the other $475 as soon as the job was done. Whereupon the three of them shook hands and called it a day.

Now it so happened that Alphonse and Joseph were friendly th Giovanni Volpe, the husband. y called for him the following day and took him to Coney nd—figuring, of course, that y Island would be just as a place as any to bump off nwanted husband. But the was warm and the beach was ded. So Alphonse took Jo to one side.

think we'll wait awhile," said honse. "It's too nice a day to im. What do you think?"

eph bowed.

hatever you say, Alphonse," plied courteously.

ce Giovanni, although he didn't it, escaped with his life that ernoon. On the following ursday night, however, he sn't quite so lucky. Once more two friends called for him, and ce more he went out with them. ey told him they had discovered an old sweetheart of his up Mamaroneck.

Giovanni grinned from ear to

That's great," he chirped. "I'm dying to see her."

nd he wasn't kidding either.

n the two boys got the hus d to the proper spot, Giovanni ed around him.

don't see her," he muttered. ere——?"

th of his pals pulled guns their pockets.

ere she comes," they an ced.

honse and Joseph had prom he wife a thorough job, and certainly kept their word. pumped bullet after bullet iovanni and that gentleman ed into the next world in rapid fashion. At the au it was determined that 13 s had been fired into the man.

re were no houses on that ular street. As the two men d away from the scene, Al e nudged Joseph.

irteen shots," he exclaimed. 's bad luck. Wait."

raised his gun and fired an shot into the air. Alphonse hat Joseph had done the thing. No use fooling around number 13 when everybody ws it brings bad luck. At the urteenth bullet, away they raced.

Two blocks away, which is here the nearest home was located, a Mrs. Langerfeld was eading her evening paper. She had just completed an article on the perils of Chicago when the shooting began. Soon it stopped, and Mrs. Langerfeld thought the oise had been caused by a ma ine. A few seconds later, how er, a bullet came flying through r window. This convinced the lady that something was wrong somewhere. And she very promptly phoned the police.

As they rushed to the Langerfield home, the police found Giovanni's body. They immediately covered the railroad station and pounced upon Joseph and Alphonse as those worthies were buying tickets to New York. And that's how it happens that both of them are now in the death house.

It was the fourteenth bullet that broke Mrs. Langerfeld's window and caused her to phone the police. Had the murderers stopped at 13, it's a pretty safe bet they would still be at large.

The boys, it seems, were just a little too superstitious . . .

As long as we're talking of gunmen and such, you might be interested in Bert Lahr's story of the Broadway gunman who stepped out one night and killed a pal. It must have been a rather naughty thing for him to have done. For no sooner had the pal been placed in his grave than his ghost returned to haunt the gunman.

That ghost, my friends, was one of the peskiest spirits that ever looked like a floating klansman. No matter where the gunman went that ghost was sure to go. He was the original understudy for Mary's little lamb.

The gunman's nerves began to go. He couldn't eat. He couldn't sleep. His hands began to tremble so much that the poor fellow could hardly lift a blackjack. After several weeks of this he could stand it no longer. He left Broadway and went to California.

But even that failed to help him. No matter what he did, nothing would make that pesky ghost disappear. He was becoming an absolute wreck. What was he to do? There was only one thing he could do—and he very promptly did it.

He went out and killed another man in order to get a change of ghosts! . . . .

"IN YOUR occasional sob stories about Broadway characters," writes Bertha Scott, of Boston, "you have overlooked one very excellent bet. Why not write a story or two about chorus girls? I'm sure you'll find some real drama in their lives."

Thank you very much, madam. That's a splendid idea. By the way, are you that "Constant Reader" I hear so much about? . . . . . .

RAIL MEN HERE CUT HOURS

The reduction in trainmen's working hours adopted by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in Houston, Tex., last week, has been in force here since April 1, William A. Rickley, financial secretary of Pittsburgh Chapter No. 30, of the Brotherhood, said today.

The cut, adopted in the belief it would furnish work for about one-fourth of the unemployed trainmen in the country, limits members in freight service to 3,500 miles monthly, members in passenger service to 5,500 miles. By its provisions, members in yard service would be limited to 26 days, or 200 hours.

The reduction was adopted voluntarily by trainmen on all lines in the Pittsburgh district, Rickley said.

NOISY BURGLAR SUSPECT HELD

Chased from the home of Certes Blackwell at 32 Lane way, North Side, when he was detected, police say, by Blackwell, who was aroused from sleep, Harry Groves, 23, of 5410 Sunnyside avenue, was arrested on a suspicious-person charge. Blackwell captured him in the rear yard.

Police say that Groves had broken a window in the home of Mrs. Sarah Webb at 34 Lane way and then had smashed a window in the Blackwell home, later entering. In breaking the windows he suffered a laceration of the wrist and before being lodged in North Side Police Station, he was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

Attacked by two highwaymen while walking on the North Side early today, W. J. Miller, of 1401 Hope street, North Braddock, was beaten and robbed of $120. The men slugged him, took the money and left him unconscious on the pavement. He was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

Freedom for 20 Bucks

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

One of those trial divorces in Reno.

This is what is known as the companionate separation.

It's platonic disagreement.

The couple said they would love, honor and obey. But forgot to copyright the slogan.

Judge: "Lady, do you know this man?"

Lady: "I think so. He's my husband."

Judge: "We'll fix that."

Husband: "Make it two, judge, and drop a lime in mine."

Judge: "What do you accuse this man of, lady?"

Lady: "Of being my husband."

Husband: "Guilty, your honor, as charged with no extenuating circumstances. I loved her, promised to support her for life, gave her a nice home, a big limousine—"

Judge: "Court stenographer, make a note of that. The scoundrel is confessing."

Husband: "We went to Europe in the summer. California in the winter. I gave her a dowry of a million sparkling dollars—"

Judge: "Awful, fearful. Remember, prisoner, anything you say will be used against you. Brutal, atrocious."

Husband: "She didn't have a worry in the world—"

Lady: "The monotony was killing me."

Judge: "The prisoner is found guilty of sameness in the second degree. He is sentenced to his liberty."

Husband: "Have mercy, Judge."

Judge: "Can't afford it at these prices. The lady can take her maiden name or any other she can grab. But we advise her not to use it on the backs of checks. Twenty dollars, please, in cash. Next case."

CORNERSTONE OF SCHOOL SET

The cornerstone for the new $750,000 school of the Felician Sisters, on the Montour Heights road, near Coraopolis, was laid yesterday with ceremonies in which the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh, officiated.

The school, to be used as a mother house and an academy for girls, is being built by the Order of St. Francis. The building, under construction, will contain more than 300 rooms, with accommodations for 500 persons. Anthony Pyzdrowski is the architect.

MURDER TRIAL FOR BOY SET

CHICAGO, June 1.—(INS.)—Varner Corry, 15-year-old "model" boy, who shot and killed Policeman Edward Smith, when ordered to leave a swimming pool, will go on trial for murder, it was announced today by Assistant State's Attorney William Rittenhouse. The state, however, will not demand a death sentence.

The announcement was made just as the widow of the slain officer took the stand at the opening of the coroner's inquest. She broke down, sobbed and screamed. Pointing to the boy, who was seated between his mother and father, the widow shouted:

"There he is, the murderer. They call him a model son. Lie! Lie! A model murderer—that's what he is. He killed my Eddie."

ASH ABANDONS PACIFIC FLIGHT

TOKIO, June 1.—(AP.)—A Rengo Agency dispatch from Samushiro today said Thomas Ash, Jr., had abandoned his proposed non-stop flight across the Pacific and was returning to Tokio.

Ash's abandonment of the flight was attributed in the Rengo dispatch to the failure of his plane to come up to expectations in several particulars. The message said the motor failed to run perfectly.

A thick fog prevented Ash from beginning his flight at daybreak today. Previously, on Sunday, his heavily-laden monoplane refused to rise from the mile-long beach runway here.

NICOLA HALL SITE FOES RENEW COURT FIGHT

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

With the deliberate hope of arousing jealousy in every woman who is or thinks she is a good cook, we should like to report that Mr. C. H. Thompson, of Mt. Lebanon can bake a pie better than nine women out of nine. Any woman in Mt. Lebanon who knows the Thompsons will almost admit that. Mr. Thompson has his own recipe for a pie which he calls Sunny-Silver. When Mrs. Thompson's Sunday school class comes to their home, he makes four pies for them; also a frozen fruit salad and the angel food cake. With him around, his wife hasn't baked a cake for 14 years. Mr. Thompson contends pie-baking is a ticklish proposition—if you get too much shortening, the pie falls apart; if not enough, the pie is tough.

William Pfarr

Mr. Thompson is 62 and a conductor on the New York-Chicago express. He has been with the B. & O. for 40 years. Before that he was a printer. And he once knew a sheep which liked cake. The sheep would eat home-made cake but positively would not eat baker's cake. No fooling.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., June 1.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

President Hoover made a mighty fine and very sincere speech Saturday at Valley Forge. He found somebody that was worse off than we are, but he had to go back 150 years in history to do it. He claims that George Washington was in just about as bad shape with his army then, as Mellon is with his deficit now. But George only had to worry about getting through the winter. We've got to worry about getting through the summer, then the winter, then another summer before the Democrats can possibly do anything for us. Yours, WILL.

'ARMY' LEADER UPHOLDS DRY AMENDMENT

Evangeline Booth Asserts Return of Beer, Wine Means Rum Traffic; Speaks Here

The return of light wine and beer means the return of 90 per cent of the liquor traffic, according to Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army, who spoke yesterday afternoon before more than 5,000 people in Syria Mosque and an overflow crowds in Memorial Hall. The 66-year-old crusader scored war as a stalking monster of irrationalism and asserted that the most valuable sentiment today is the universal sentiment for world-wide peace.

DEFENDS DRY LAW

The Eighteenth Amendment has reduced drunkenness nine-tenths, according to Commander Booth, who added:

"When people talk about the return of light wines and beer, they do not realize that beer is 90 per cent of the alcohol consumed. They don't realize that if beer is brought back we will bring back nine-tenths of the liquor traffic."

DESCRIBES 'ARMY'

Concerning war, Commander Booth said:

"I'm convinced that the day is not far distant when all men will brand war as a stalking monster of irrationalism, and will force the monster, that for centuries has been beating down the weak, to bow down to the noble principles of comradeship and brotherhood. I am convinced that our most valuable sentiment today is our desire for universal peace."

Tracing the history of the Salvation Army, founded by her father, Gen. William Booth, Commander Booth said the greatest legacy left to the world by him was his abandonment to the will of God to save mankind

SEEK TO REVOKE APPROVAL OF BOND ISSUE

Magee Counsel in Harrisburg Battle Against Decision Given by State Officials

Opponents of the Nicola site in Oakland for the proposed $6,000,000 town hall will be on hand tomorrow when a second round of the court fight opens in Dauphin County Court at Harrisburg. They will be prepared to push the suit which seeks revocation of the approval of the bond issue for the hall, granted March 21 by the Department of Internal Affairs.

John H. Palmer, a taxpayer, presented the petition through his attorney, the former Mayor William A. Magee, counsel for the Downtown Town Hall Association.

Opponents to the Oakland site met a defeat last week when President Judge James R. Macfarlane of Common Pleas Court, refused to enjoin the county officials from purchasing the property from Nicola. The decision cited lack of authority on the part of the court to interfere with the discretionary rights of the commissioners.

Attorney Oliver K. Eaton has announced that an appeal is to be taken from Judge Macfarlane's decision.

300 TO ATTEND WOMEN'S MEET

Three hundred delegates will attend the state convention of the Women's Benefit Association to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday in William Penn Hotel. At the opening session Thursday morning, Judge Sara Soffel, of County Court, and the Rev. George W. Shelton, of the Second Presbyterian Church, will welcome the delegates.

Thursday night a banquet is to be held at which Mrs. Bina M. West, of Port Huron, Mich., supreme commander, and Miss Nellie E. Lounsbury, of Warren, Pa., supreme regional director for the state, will speak. The arrangements for the convention are under the direction of local deputies, including Mrs Hester Coslette, Mrs. Emma McDonald and Mrs. Anna Hulick.

G. O. P. Cannot Believe Evil of Beloved Tariff

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

French jury looked at accused American lady and said:

"She's too beautiful to be bad."

Which is the same way the G. O. P. feels about the Hawley-Smoot tariff.

The Democrats are clawing at that tariff like a wildcat in a butcher shop.

They say it is responsible for all our troubles, business, industrial, and even the antics of Sunday drivers on a Saturday.

The G. O. P. says the Democrats are blind theorists and free traders and are putting the recall in front of the refendum.

Unfortunately, or fortunately, all depending on how you voted, we are in an epoch where a Democratic complaint is only a worm cast on the green.

The Republicans are sticking to their two-man team tariff.

And, as usual, the operation will be a success if the patient leaves an estate.

STEEL WORKERS GO ON STRIKE

Structural steel work on the Gulf Refining Building, Bell Telephone, Arsenal Building, Mellon Institute and several smaller projects stopped today when 150 members of the Bridge, Structural Steel and Ornamental Iron Workers went on strike, union leaders reported.

Members of the union are demanding an increase from $1.50 to $1.65 an hour and a five-day week. Their agreement with the Building Trades Employers' Association expired Sunday night.

F. O. Reed, secretary of the Building Trades Employers' Association, said the group has agreed to grant the five-day week demanded by the men, but that the association will not change its position on the wage question.

No action was taken by the union today. Spokesmen said they are awaiting the next move from the Building Trades Employers' Association. Miss M. Emmeline Pitt, Department of Labor conciliator, is seeking mediation.

Sons of Columbus End Meeting Today

A business meeting today was to close the third national convention of the Sons of Columbus of America, in session in Clairton. A banquet in the Clairton High School auditorium last night, featured the second day of the three day convention. Delegates visited industrial plants of the district on Saturday and yesterday attended two business sessions. Donats Ardolino, national president, made the principal address at the banquet last night.

ROME, June 1.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini has announced that instead of accepting the full 7,000,000,000 lire subscribed to the 4,000,000,000 lire internal loan, he would take only 5,000,000,000, returning 2,000,000,000 in cash.

OFFICER QUITS CITY FOR FARM

W. N. McBride, traffic officer at Wood and Water streets for the past seven years is leaving all the noise and confusion of 22 years on Pittsburgh's streets for a quiet retirement on a lazy little farm in the Shenandoah Valley where he was born. He said:

"It will be great to get away from the noise and dirt, but I hate to leave my friends."

McBride lives at 1526 Superior avenue, North Side. His three sons, William, 22; Jack, 25, and Paul, 28, will remain in Pittsburgh. McBride and his wife, Kathryn, intend to take things easy on their two-acre farm in Garrardstown, between Winchester and Martinsburg.

His fellow patrolmen plan to give him a gold watch. His friends at Wood and Water streets will give him a large basket of fruit and a money bag with a farewell message, affixed with nearly 200 signatures.

'Jealousy Complex' Revealed to Beauty On Ocean Honeymoon

By CHARLOTTE NASH NIXON-NIRDLINGER

THIS is the sixth installment of her life story by Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, recently acquitted in Nice, France, of the murder of her husband, wealthy Philadelphia theater magnate. The jury's verdict was returned in the record time of 10 minutes.

While awaiting trial in her prison cell Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger penned this story of her romance. She traces her career from the time she was selected to represent St. Louis at the national beauty pageant in Atlantic City to the tragic death of her husband in their palatial villa on the Riviera.

The episode she relates today contradicts many reports about her honeymoon. She tells both sides of the story, however, revealing how she discovered, too late, the tangled mesh of circumstances in which she had been caught.

NICE.

The public and the newspapers at first were not aware of our elopement and sudden marriage for a good reason. In Hagerstown, Md., I agreed to follow the suggestions of Mr. Nixon-Nirdlinger. He assured me he wanted to avoid publicity, so we ought to alter our names just enough to insure the legality of the marriage and yet keep it a secret.

As I said before, I was unaware of a deeper motive. So when I registered for the licence I described myself as C. Isabelle Nash, 18 years old, single, of Washington, D. C. Fred put down "Goodwin Nirdlinger, 45 years old, single, of Los Angeles, Cal.

The only correct thing about his statement was his age. However, I believed he was single.

The same evening of the wedding I returned to the seminary. I remained there until the spring vacation, two months later. In this connection I was slightly amused at the time by the statement that I had tired of school and that Mr. Nixon-Nirdlinger had decided I was "sufficiently educated." The simple fact is that in view of our marriage it would not have been possible for me to continue going to school at a girls' seminary. It is obvious that, while I knew of no rule forbidding a married girl to attend school, the seminary authorities undoubtedly would have opposed it.

Meanwhile no one knew of our marriage except the minister and his wife and one of their friends. Finally I took a trip through the United States and visited my par-and Marry!

CASH

We might go farther and say, "If you are a 'charge it' addict you'd better not marry!" Surely that insidious habit of deferring payment—of paying tomorrow for what you eat today—is as responsible for wrecking marital sailings as any other one cause.

Still there is some cause for rejoicing. Today there is far less "charging it" than there was a few years ago. Today there are far fewer conjugal scenes, with Papa tearing his hair and Mama weeping silently, over the monthly bill from the grocer's or butcher's.

The reason for this salutary state of affairs is this: fashions in ladies have changed. It used to be smart to be stupid. Now it's smart to be intelligent.

The fashionable woman of today is a keen, shrewd buyer. She can drive as good a bargain in buying groceries as her husband can in buying securities. She runs her household on a competent cash basis. Nine out of ten times—she is an A & P customer!

DORMONT GIVES AUTO PARKERS GRACE

Courtesy Cards for Week Ordered in effort to Speed Rush Hour Traffic

It's going to be a pleasure for a motorist to get a traffic tag in Dormont this week—if the tagging occurs on West Liberty avenue.

In an effort to facilitate rush hour traffic to and from the Liberty Tunnels, the Dormont Borough Council last week passed an ordinance prohibiting parking on the east side of West Liberty avenue between 7 and 9 a. m. and on the west side from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m.

The ordinance became effective today and Burgess Charles Chamberlin said special "courtesy cards" will be placed on any car illegally parked all this week, telling the driver of the new regulations and warning him against a second violation.

A week from today, police will start issuing the regular traffic tags to violators.

For a time Dr. Goehring, surgeon at the hospital, despaired of saving the child. Skin of the boy's father, William Coyle, 834 Anaheim street, was grafted last February, and since he has steadily improved.

Physicians are now straightening his legs, and it is expected Johnny will be able to walk in another month. He hopes it will be in time for the next circus that comes to town. Nurses say he is the happiest child in the ward.

MORTON DOWNEY and TONY WONS
on the Camel Quarter Hour

Every night except Sunday at 7:45 p. m., Pittsburgh time, over the Columbia Broadcasting System

ON the street of a million lights called Broadway has risen a bright new star, Morton Downey. To shop girls and debutantes, to men and women of every age, of every walk in life, the silver magic of his lilting tenor has won for him at twenty-nine, the plaudits of the most critical city in the world.

When he sang on the great stage at the Paramount Theater, crowds stormed the doors to hear him. At a popular night club where he was featured, dancers stopped to listen, held by the spell of his song.

Now Morton Downey brings his great gift to radio!

Every night, except Sunday, he will thrill America on the Camel Quarter Hour with a repertory of song over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

...still listenin'?

And the Master of Ceremonies — guess who . . . None other than Tony Wons, better known to radio listeners as the inimitable Tony of "Tony's Scrap Book."

...still listenin'?

And behind it all, the soft steady throb of drums, the croon of saxophones and the muted melodies of brass; the new Camel Orchestra, directed by Jacques Renard. We think you'll like it. Tune them in tonight.

This unique program is presented to you by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Manufacturers of Camel Cigarettes.

RADIO FROM SHIP IN 'RUM ROW'

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

Hearst Radio Service triumphs again with the announcement today that an attempt will be made Tuesday night, June 9, at 9:30 o'clock, to broadcast a program direct from "rum row" beyond the 12-mile limit. A tug bearing a portable transmitter will pull up beside the rum fleet and Ford Frick, famous sport announcer, will interview the head man.

Arrangements for this unique broadcast were made by Tom Brooks, radio editor of the New York Journal.

Anthony Wons, better known as "Tony" of "Tony's Scrapbook," collaborates with two other CBS stars, Morton Downey and Jacques Renard, to introduce a new 15-minute series over WJAS at 7:45 tonight. Tony essays a new role, that of master of ceremonies.

Richard Crooks, tenor, who made his debut with Mme. Schumann-Heink when only 12 years old, entertains on WCAE at 9:30, singing "In a Persian Garden" and "Ah, Moon of My Delight."

Mathilde Harding, former Pittsburgh girl, appears in a joint recital with Arcadie Birkenholz, violinist, via WEAF-WCAE at 7 o'clock.

SUCCESSFUL OPENING

WWSW surpassed all expectations with their opening at Hotel Schenley yesterday. Programs were varied. Artists were the best. We liked particularly the voice of Haven Haas who was brought to Pittsburgh from WLBW to help Joe Sartory with programs. The quality of the material yesterday showed that Mr. Sartory and Mr. Haas had deliberated judiciously in picking talent for the opening program. John C. Drummond, manager of the station, amazed everyone with a very fine quality baritone voice. Hundreds of telephone calls were received.

The celebration continues tonight at 8 o'clock, with a presentation of notables.

WWSW operates on 1500 kilocycles or 199.9 meters. Log them where you once picked up WMBJ.

Four sites are being considered for that new 1,000-watt KQV transmitter. The preferred site is on the Boulevard of the Allies; second, a North Side warehouse along the Allegheny; third, the Plaza Building; fourth, a store building on Liberty avenue.

STUDIO LIGHTS

White flannels and blue coats are the order of the day at KQV. . .

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst will talk on "The Well Babies and Children" program of the Radio Home-Makers' Club over WABC-WJAS tomorrow morning at 11:45 o'clock.

Ben Bernie replaces Richy Craig tomorrow night on WJAS, and the time has been changed to 10 o'clock. . .

We have never heard anything more verbose than Graham McNamee's description of the Indianapolis classic, Memorial Day . . . we think that divorce affair has him worried. . .

He and Paul Dumont talked so much of rubber that we expected Paul to say that his hiking around the speedway had been made easier by "good rubber heels manufactured by ———" . . . .

Ted Lewis is the showman of the air . . . variety sparkles in his broadcasts . . . witness Saturday his presentation of the melodious "Valse Biuette" after he had taken his audience for a ride on that hill-billy song, "Comin' Round the Mountain" . . .

Prof. Henry Burbig was delicious with a "Sardine" lecture. . . his signature was the old sea song, "Anchovies Aweigh."

Cliff Ryan reminds us that Jimmy Murray (WJAS, 7:15) is doing a good radio sports job. . .

Because the club where Al Steele and His Orchestra were playing burned down, KQV has lost a three-a-week program of dance music. Peter Zummo, organist, is filling in the time temporarily.

Perhaps 500 artists will gather at NBC on Thursday, June 11, to help May Singhi Breen and Peter de Rose (Mr. and Mrs.) celebrate their eighth anniversary on the network . . .

Mildred Wall, star of "Up Pops the Devil," is a sister of Lucille Wall, love story girl on Sunday night's "Magazine Hour." . . .

Warren Wade, producer of "Opry House Tonite" at WTAM, once played Pittsburgh vaudeville . . .

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs, is to be interviewed on WCAE Wednesday night.

Sing Tonight

Barbara Maurel   Richard Crooks

"Come Back to Ole Virginny" is a Barbara Maurel solo on WJAS at 8:30 tonight. Richard Crooks, tenor on WCAE at 9:30, interprets "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, May 29.—It requires only little research to find that the worst of America's songs were the product of the sombre nineties, the era of the bustle and mustache cup.

Broadcasters, happily, give little attention to these tunes save to recall historically some of the atmosphere of their time.

Wonder how the old political oratory of the time would sound on the radio. There might be some fun in reviving it.

Radio fishermen have ceased casting their nets at the figure of Calvin Coolidge. For a period they hoped to snare him for a series of talks.

Sir John Reith, high priest of British radio, will not disclose what type of American broadcast he likes best. Won't talk about American radio at all. But is voluble about British; says British listeners do not protest at educational programs, that they have the alternative of music on their sets by merely turning their dials; classifies a talk on the League of Nations as educational, is proud of his big symphony orchestra.

Tall and thin is Sir John. Has a serious manner of talking. Speaks with more of an English than Scotch accent. Facts are at his finger tips. Glad to co-operate with American broadcasters. Hopes that more American programs will be heard in England—but not commercial ones. Oh, dear no. They would never do.

Nice gesture of Columbia to bring Ponselle to the parlors from Lunnon in Verdi's "La Forzadel Destino."

No class of sports is to evade the radio rajas—no, even college crew races, not even golf tournaments. Crew races and golf tournaments are not among the prize broadcasts of the sports hour. Dusk always envelope the crews at the finish line and there's no excitement to the listener in a pitch to the green.

There is always room for one more Stradivarious on the microphones. Radio press agents, you might know, have now discovered the last one made.

Carolina cannot be silenced long on the loudspeakers. Broadcasters are taking the wrapping off "Carolina Moon." Yet with all the efforts of the song shops and the radio salons Carolina is not showing an appreciable increase in population.

Wonder why most the sad songs of the world are concerned with rivers. Is it because of their slow and rhythmic flow or the melancholy lapping of their waters or their association with the homeland of despairing peoples?

The most conspicuous places on the springboard of the radio sea are still held by the same people who occupied them a year ago—Amos 'n' Andy, Floyd Gibbons and Mons. Vallee. But the radio chiefs continue their frantic search for a new sensation. The next sensation is probably now an obscure entertainer in radioland, bidin' his time, waiting for the breaks. The most enduring ballads seem to be those which have a peculiar appropriateness to bathroom singing.

Many people sniff at radio for its repetition of songs, yet the microphone is fairly free of bassos singing "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" and sopranos warbling "Listen to the Mocking Bird."

Shaw in a tribute-paying mood is something new for radio today. Wisecracks are hard to get over on the air. Most professional wisecrackers know it. And so when called to the microphones they adjust a reliable sentimental mask.

Jazz bands are now penetrating the parlors from country clubs. They have been heard from restaurants, hotels, theaters and churches. Only the school house is left. When the school house is reached then we shall have education on the air in a really big way.

DEAN HOSTESS TO PITT GIRLS

A dinner for women members of the graduating class Wednesday night in Heinz House will open commencement activities of the University of Pittsburgh, which will be brought to a close with the graduation in Syria Mosque June 10. Thyrsa W. Amos, dean of women, will be hostess to the women. The annual senior ball is to be held Friday night in the Hotel Schenley with Hubert Garver as general chairman.

Dean Amos also is to tender a reception to alumni and senior women in the Hotel Schenley Saturday night. The Rev. Dr. D. W. Wylie, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, New York, is to preach the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning in Carnegie Music Hall.

Pneumonia Victim Quits Bed and Dies

FLOOD WRITERS TO MEET

Once with a membership between 300 and 400, the Johnstown Flood Correspondents Association will hold its reunion at Webster Hall tomorrow night with nine present. It is the forty-second annual gathering. At the zenith of its career in the '90s, there were 275 at the dinner given in Harrisburg in 1891 by Gov. Daniel H. Hastings, and later over 300 at a similar event in New York. The dwindling list, it is explained, is due to deaths and the scattering of its members, it being the rule names are automatically dropped from the list when no response is received to the notice of the meeting. Sixteen notices were sent out this year and but nine responded. W. A. K. Clark, of Carnegie, president, will preside at tomorrow's dinner.

NEW PICTURES REVIEWED; HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY CHATTER

Broadway Stage Comedy To Be Montgomery's Next Star Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, June 1.

Stage hits are finding their way quickly into the movies these days.

"The Truth Game," an Ivor Novello comedy that Broadway saw this year, will be Robert Montgomery's next starring picture. It will be made after Bob steps down temporarily to take a featured lead in "Sea Eagles."

Novello himself will do the screen-play. He already has taken up residence here. Incidentally, Billie Burke, who played opposite the actor-author on Broadway, arrives Sunday to appear in a coast production of "The Vinegar Tree."

R. Montgomery

The quick translation of "The Truth Game" into a talkie is in sharp contrast to the long restrictions put on "Broadway," "Strictly Dishonorable," "The Front Page" and other stage hits. This may or may not mean the New York moguls are losing their fear of a play being killed by the previous appearance of a talkie. One of them, at least, has come around, for Dashiell Hammett's "Maltese Falcon," already a talkie, will not be acted on the stage until next season.

LATEST GOSSIP

There is another sequel to the inconvenient resemblance of James Crane and William (Stage) Boyd. Both of the actors were engaged to appear in a murder mystery at Paramount. Crane was to play the murderer and Boyd a detective sergeant. After two days' rushes were examined, studio officials discovered the murderer seemed to be chasing himself. They paid Crane up and let him go . . . Maybe it's only the influence of a spring, but it looks as if a romance is developing between Johnnie Darrow and Rochelle Hudson . . . Lawrence Tibbett is motoring out here from New York . . . Hollywood is watching with interest the tiff between the wife of a well-known producer and her former best friend, who happens to be the ife of the producer's righthand n. It all came about over an ntended slight . . . Seven nths in a hospital have repaired hur Rankin's health so he is able to do light work as a technical adviser on a dog picture. The young actor, a distant relative of John Barrymore, is an authority on racing whippets . . . Latest of he polo casualties is Michael Curtis, the director. He was hrown from his horse on Sunday . . . Wesley Ruggles is combing the high schools here for a boy to play the lead in "Are These Our Children." Johnnie Darrow was to have had the part, but he doesn't look young enough . . . Buddy De Sylva is back in town. He's to be associate producer on the Gershwin film, "Delicious." . . . And many plans are being made for the midsummer beach dance of the Mayfair Club. Dick Hunt predicts bodies will be floating in for weeks.

WEBSTER TAKE NOTE

And then there's Robert Hopkins who describes a certain studio executive as "the lord of all he overlooks."

UNDERWORLD AGAIN

For all the studio protestations of the end of gang pictures, the underworld still creeps into many stories. James Whitaker, for instance, has sold a story to Radio called "The Chicago Dove." Mary Astor will star in it and Ricardo Cortez will be her support. The story deals with a gangster who aids a girl to become an opera singer and who eventually is put on the spot because he double-crossed the gang to supply her with money. George Archianbaud directs the film, but not until after he has had a month's vacation.

CRUEL BUT NEAT

GOLD DUST GERTIE HAS SLAPSTICKY TIME IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Gold Dust Gertie," being about six reels of slapstick farce, is the current film in the Stanley. It features the goofy gal, Winnie Lightner, and the comedy team, Olsen and Johnson. And it amounts to a big spoof of the serious ex-wife, ex-husband and ex-this and ex-that drammers which Hollywood grinds out with such dramatic abandon. But its not much of a picture.

Gertie, played by Winnie, is an ex-wife who sets out to collect from two of her ex-husbands who have married again. And when their second wives learn there has been another woman before them its just like a Hal Roach jamboree.

EVEN PIE EXPECTED

Dishes are thrown, statuettes are smashed and any minute you expect a custard pie. But evidently the baker didn't show up at the Hollywood studio that day.

Gertie also bills and coos a conservative old manufacturer of bathing suits into childish moments. Claude Gillingwater portrays this gentleman.

Much of the picture is a repetition of all the old comedy gags that the two-reel comedies grew tired of years ago and thus it is about as bright and new as a picture postcard of Niagara Falls.

STAGE SHOW LIVELY

"Carnival of Youth," a lively enough show, is on the stage. Charlie Hill, the cuckoo music man, is the biggest scream. No foolin', he's the fun. Anna Chang, Chinese girl, sings; Bernice and Emily do topsy-turvy dancing; Dub Taylor plays a harmonica; Tommy Wonder steps, and the Seven Trojans, flip-flop and build human pyramids and become eight when Dick Powell takes an acrobatic turn. Mr. Powell brightens up the show a lot with his singing of "Moonlight Saving Time."

WOMAN RULES WORLD OF FINANCE IN THE WARNER

By MILDRED FILLMORE

May Robson, veteran actress of the legitimate stage, is appearing on the Warner screen in "The She-Wolf," a picturization of the footlight play, "Mother's Millions." Her portrayal makes the production a worthwhile and entertaining film.

The central character in this picture is supposed to be that eccentric and feminine wizard of finance, Hattie Breen herself. Well, maybe it is, and maybe it isn't. But the lady of Miss Robson's impersonation is a very interesting person, anyway.

The story concerns itself with a woman's fight for supremacy in the financial world and the effect of her life and her personality upon her two children and her close associates. There are times when she appears cold and severe; times when she seems out of her mind, and times when mother love dominates her whole being. Here is a woman who is grand and crazy. And in Miss Robson we have an actress who is grand and sane.

Of course the picture was unable to escape Hollywood's eternal brand. It goes melodramatic toward the end and almost gets away from itself. And it is labeled with a title that might sound sensational, but which is rather cheap and tawdry.

Lillian Harmer does exceptional work as the hired girl, who is made vice president of a railroad by her eccentric employer. Frances Dade is attractive in a daughter role; Lawrence Grey does all right as the son, and James Hall makes a satisfactory young man, who is both in business and in love.

AHA, NOVELTY AT LAST, A GANGSTER PICTURE IN THE PENN

By GEORGE SEIBEL

The World War will soon look like a little scrimmage if the gangster pictures get any bigger and better. "The Secret Six," which is at the Penn during the current six days, doesn't fall far behind "All Quiet on the Western Front" in ammunition expended and fatalities. It's true the censor has cut out some of the separate homicides, but he's left in the holocausts. Again we see a Volstead brewery in operation, and this time we also get some views of how the gangsters elect their own mayor and how they fix their juries. It's a beautiful picture of still life under the Eighteenth Patch upon the Constitution.

George Seibel

The story is a bit confused, owing to the merciful intentions of the censor who doesn't want us to see too many corpses, and owing to the rapidity of the many massacres. Somebody is being bumped off every other minute, and the smoke seldom clears away. It's got Gettysburg looking like a bridge game.

STARS THAT SHINE

Wallace Beery is chief of the shooting stars that shine brightly. He does a marvelous piece of characterization as Scorpio, who rose from the slaughter-house where he made 35 bucks a week to the top rung of gangdom where he gives his girl friend gifts worth 10 grand. Louis Stone as the master mind also is impressive, and Marjorie Rambeau does some gleeful vendetta business. The sirens shriek and the gats bark, and at last the chief gangster is hanged or burnt—thanks to the Secret Six, who put an end to all this reign of desperate wickedness by wearing little black masks and talking to reporters.

Little black masks aren't expensive and the government ought to buy a few and put an end to the crime wave.

ACROBATS DE LUXE

The feature of the stage show is an acrobatic act that has everything similar beaten both for daring flights and comedy byplay. Then there is a very clever conjuror who serves the audience any drink they have a yen for—even buttermilk. And there are some tap dancers who furnish rhythmical idiocy, and some adagio dancers who provide living pictures amid wild whirls. But those three acrobats are the real thing.

Dick Leibert "took his sugar to tea," pleaded for "moonlight saving time" and closed with "Zwei Herzen im drei-viertel Takt." At last that epidemic has got to Pittsburgh!

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Gladys Glad, who once was picked by that well qualified picker, Florence Ziegfeld, as the world's peachest peach, retired from the stage a couple of years ago, but she will be back in Mr. Ziegfeld's "Follies" when that revue has its premiere in the Nixon Thursday June 11, to remain nine dazzling daze. To keep her company, Ziggy also has signed another bit of eye-comfort, Dorothy Doll, alias "Miss Universe," as Galveston, Tex., sees the universe.

Small Timer, finishing up his bit of dance with a flourish, says that anybody who enters the state of spatrimony gets fool value for his money.

Elmer Kenyon, who is now in Chicago adding to the afflatus of the Windy City, will be home shortly, he writes, prepared to overlook all vacation-spot literature. Just now Mr. Kenyon's inspiration is being expended in behalf of "He," French comedy by Alfred Savoir, which likely will be one of the Theater Guild's plays here next season.

"Small Timer says that vacation time for a lot of people would be a chance to rest up from loafing by having a couple of weeks of work.

Ann Harding, erstwhile Pittsburgh stock actress, now a leading star of the fillums, was voted the favorite motion picture player of the senior class of Dartmouth College. Runners up were Greta Garbo, Ruth Chatterton, Joan Crawford and Marlene Dietrich, in the order named.

Small Timer says that when women scolded in Puritan days the law used the ducking-stool, but that when a woman shoots off her mouth these days her husband does the ducking.

Legislator Injured As Auto Hits Pole

WHEELING, W. Va., June 1.—(AP.)—P. J. McGuire, 40, Wellsburg attorney and a member of the House of Delegates from Brooke County, was seriously injured last night on the Ohio River highway, six miles from Wheeling, when his automobile struck a telephone pole. Police said they believed a broken steering wheel caused the accident. McGuire was brought to a Wheeling hospital.

'LADIES' MAN' FILM FEATURES POWELL IN ALDINE

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Ladies Man," film dramatization of the novel by Rupert Hughes, is the current offering of the Aldine screen. The writer never has read the novel, hence does not know to what extent the movie men have taken liberty, but he assumes that Mr. Hughes would not turn out his situations in such an unconvincing way as the picture does. Nevertheless, it does hold the attention and really becomes quite tense toward the finale, after an indifferent beginning.

William Powell and Kay Francis are featured players. The former is seen as a "gigolo" type, a suave playboy, a pleasant chap who holds the friendliness of the audience despite his character.

WOMAN GIVES JEWELS

His "way with the ladies" results in a banker's wife giving him jewels to pawn, so he can live in elegance, and her daughter falling in love with him. Then he falls in love with Kay Francis and resolves to reform.

But pawned jewels come home to roost. Rather, back to the banker and there is murder afoot immediately. Powell is first shot then tossed off the balcony of his skyscraper apartment. The denouement comes with the banker instead of Powell, leading the grand march of a ball with his wife, after he had put a pawned and redeemed bracelet on her wrist. In the background are police, awaiting to arrest him, and Kay Francis—weeping.

ACTING IS EXCELLENT

There are numerous scenes of gayety and so-called high life and the acting is excellent. Powell lives the polished man of which he is capable. Gilbert Emery, veteran of the stage, gives a strong dramatic portrayal. Kay Francis has warmth and appealing feminine charm. Carole Lombard plays an indiscreet flapper just right.

The Globe Trotter of Hearst Metrotone News introduces Mahatma Gandhi in interview and the same medium also presents, among other views, the spectacle of hundreds of airplanes in a demonstration above the skyscrapers of New York.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Philadelphia Scene of Wedding

To start news of society during June let's talk about a wedding. And throughout the month we shall chat about brides and bridal gowns and bridal parties.

Mrs. Adaline Corey Henderson, daughter of the junior Alfred A. Coreys, of Park avenue, New York, formerly of Pittsburgh, was married Saturday in the North Garden of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia. And the bridegroom was Asher Leston Westerfield, son of Mrs. Frances G. Westerfield, of the Maryln Hotel, Philadelphia, and of the late Richard H. Westerfield.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore aquamarine blue lace, fashioned with a brief train, and a hat of the same lace. She carried a white prayer book. Mrs. Reginald J. W. Kimble, of Marion, Pa., was matron of honor, wearing a pink net gown and a pink horsehair hat. She carried pink roses and delphinium.

Richard G. Westerfield was his brother's best man. The ceremony took place before a bower of cibotium fern and white festeva maxima peonies. A reception followed with pink and white sweetpeas decorating the tables.

The bride is a graduate of the Ogontz School, and the bridegroom attended the University of Pennsylvania. After a wedding trip, they will be at home in Wynnewood, Pa.

Students Feted

Foremost among late May's and June's entertainments are parties for graduating students of the various schools, in town and out of town. On Friday Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Klockman, of Carnegie, entertained with a bridge luncheon in the Edgewood Country Club, in honor of the graduating class of Miss Ellis' School. Their daughter, Miss Helen Klockman, is a senior there this year.

Club Closes Season at Sheraden

The Sheraden Woman's Club has closed its season and the gavel and its responsibilities are now in the hands of Mrs. Clarence Speed, who succeeds Mrs. W. W. Briant. The club held its annual luncheon Friday in Sherodd Temple with 78 present, among them being Mrs. Charles S. Banker, founder of the club; Mrs. H. C. Breidert, charter secretary, and Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, retiring Congress president.

There was a program of entertainment that included songs by Miss Ruth Malcolm, accompanied by Dorothy Ryan Nesbitt, and an amusing little play by the Uxority Club Players, assisted by Mrs. J. G. Taylor. In the cast were Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. J. V. O'Connor, Mrs. E. L. Phillips, Mrs. Boyd Haag, Mrs. Robert Irwin, Mrs. Bruce Cobaugh, Mrs. L. L. Spitler, Mrs. A. W. Rogers, Mrs. W. R. Fleming and Mrs. J. T. Shriner.

Musical Program

During the luncheon, which was served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Mrs. Donald Carnahan conducted an original and clever musical romance in which the women guessed the names of songs and then sang them.

Upon motion of Mrs. Banker, the club indorsed Judge Sara Soffel's candidacy for the bench.

At the close of the meeting, those members who are kindergarten mothers at the American Avenue School went to the school to attend a party given in honor of Miss Elizabeth McFarland, who has been a kindergarten teacher there for 20 years. Miss McFarland was presented with a jade necklace and a floor lamp and a program was given by Gertrude Garris, piano; Dorothy Ryan Nesbitt, who offered "Something Different;" Mildred Hertzler Hissom, violin, and Mrs. I. W. Harper and Marion Traa, readers. Two hundred and fifty mothers attended.

Project Party

World economic interdependence is the theme which the Industrial Girls' Clubs have chosen for their "project party" to be held in Central Branch Y. W. C. A. on Thursday evening. Ten participating clubs are planning to present stunts and foreign games, folk dances and skits. A dramatization of an international economic planning committee will be given by the Laughlin Club and a skit, entitled "Cork," by the Lawrenceville girls. These clubs, which are part of the industrial department of the Y. W. C. A. of Pittsburgh, are comprised of girls in such industries as steel products, candy making, electric goods, dress making shops and in household employment.

The party is the outgrowth of the girls' desire, as expressed in their summer and mid-winter conferences, to make a study of international problems and is a forerunner of the program to be set up for the coming year. Miss Lena Sandretto, chairman of party plans, is also chairman of the project study for the Western Pennsylvania area. She is being assisted by Miss Margaret Smith, Miss Grace Shearson, Miss Betty Katona, Miss Anna Stim, Miss Agnes Scott and Miss Verna Chambers.

In line with the industrial program, is the meeting of the Bryn Mawr Summer School alumnae at International Institute on Friday evening. This group of about 25 members is entertaining for the three girls who will attend Bryn Mawr this summer.

The first camp institute ever held in the Pittsburgh vicinity for directors of general camps closed yesterday at Dick Victor's camp near Ellwood City. Nearly 100 camp directors and counsellors attended.

Wilbur Newstetter, of the school of social work in Western Reserve University, directed the camp, which opened on Friday. Miss Helen Bell Withrow led the campfire singing and Dr. Oscar B. Markey, Cleveland psychiatrist, addressed the group on mental hygiene.

Saturday morning's schedule included camp craft specialization, nnder the direction of Miss Ruth Bonsteel, assisted by Joseph Brunton, Jr., and Miss Barbara Joy; music under Miss Withrow; handcraft with Miss Dora M. Einert, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, and her assistants, Miss Helen Bolly, Walter J. Bosley, Miss Idress Cash, Miss Ruth Meyer and Frank Skalak; swimming, canoeing and waterfront safety, directed by W. P. Sabo, of Allegheny County Boy Scouts, and a two-mile nature trail, laid by "Cap'n Bill" Vinal, of the Nature Guide School, Western Reserve University.

From 11:15 to 12:15 conferences were held on various phases of camp problems. Quiet hour followed the noon-day meal, then choice of handwork activities; swimming, supper, campfire. A similar schedule was followed yesterday, Dr. Vinal closing his nature walk with a sermonette.

The sixth annual roundup sponsored by the Emsworth Parent-Teacher Association will be held in the public school Wednesday afternoon for the examination of all pre-school children of the community. On the committee are Mrs. C. W. Doerr and Mrs. Walter Leitch, co-chairman; Mrs. Charles Wegner, Mrs. Edward Otto, Miss Dorothy Donaldson, Mrs. A. R. McCormick, Mrs. J. L. Wisner, Mrs. W. C. Hanshumaker, Mrs. A. C. Moore, Mrs. A. V. Royans, Mrs. J. J. Link, Mrs. F. J. Culbert, Mrs. W. A. Alexander and Mrs. A. B. White.

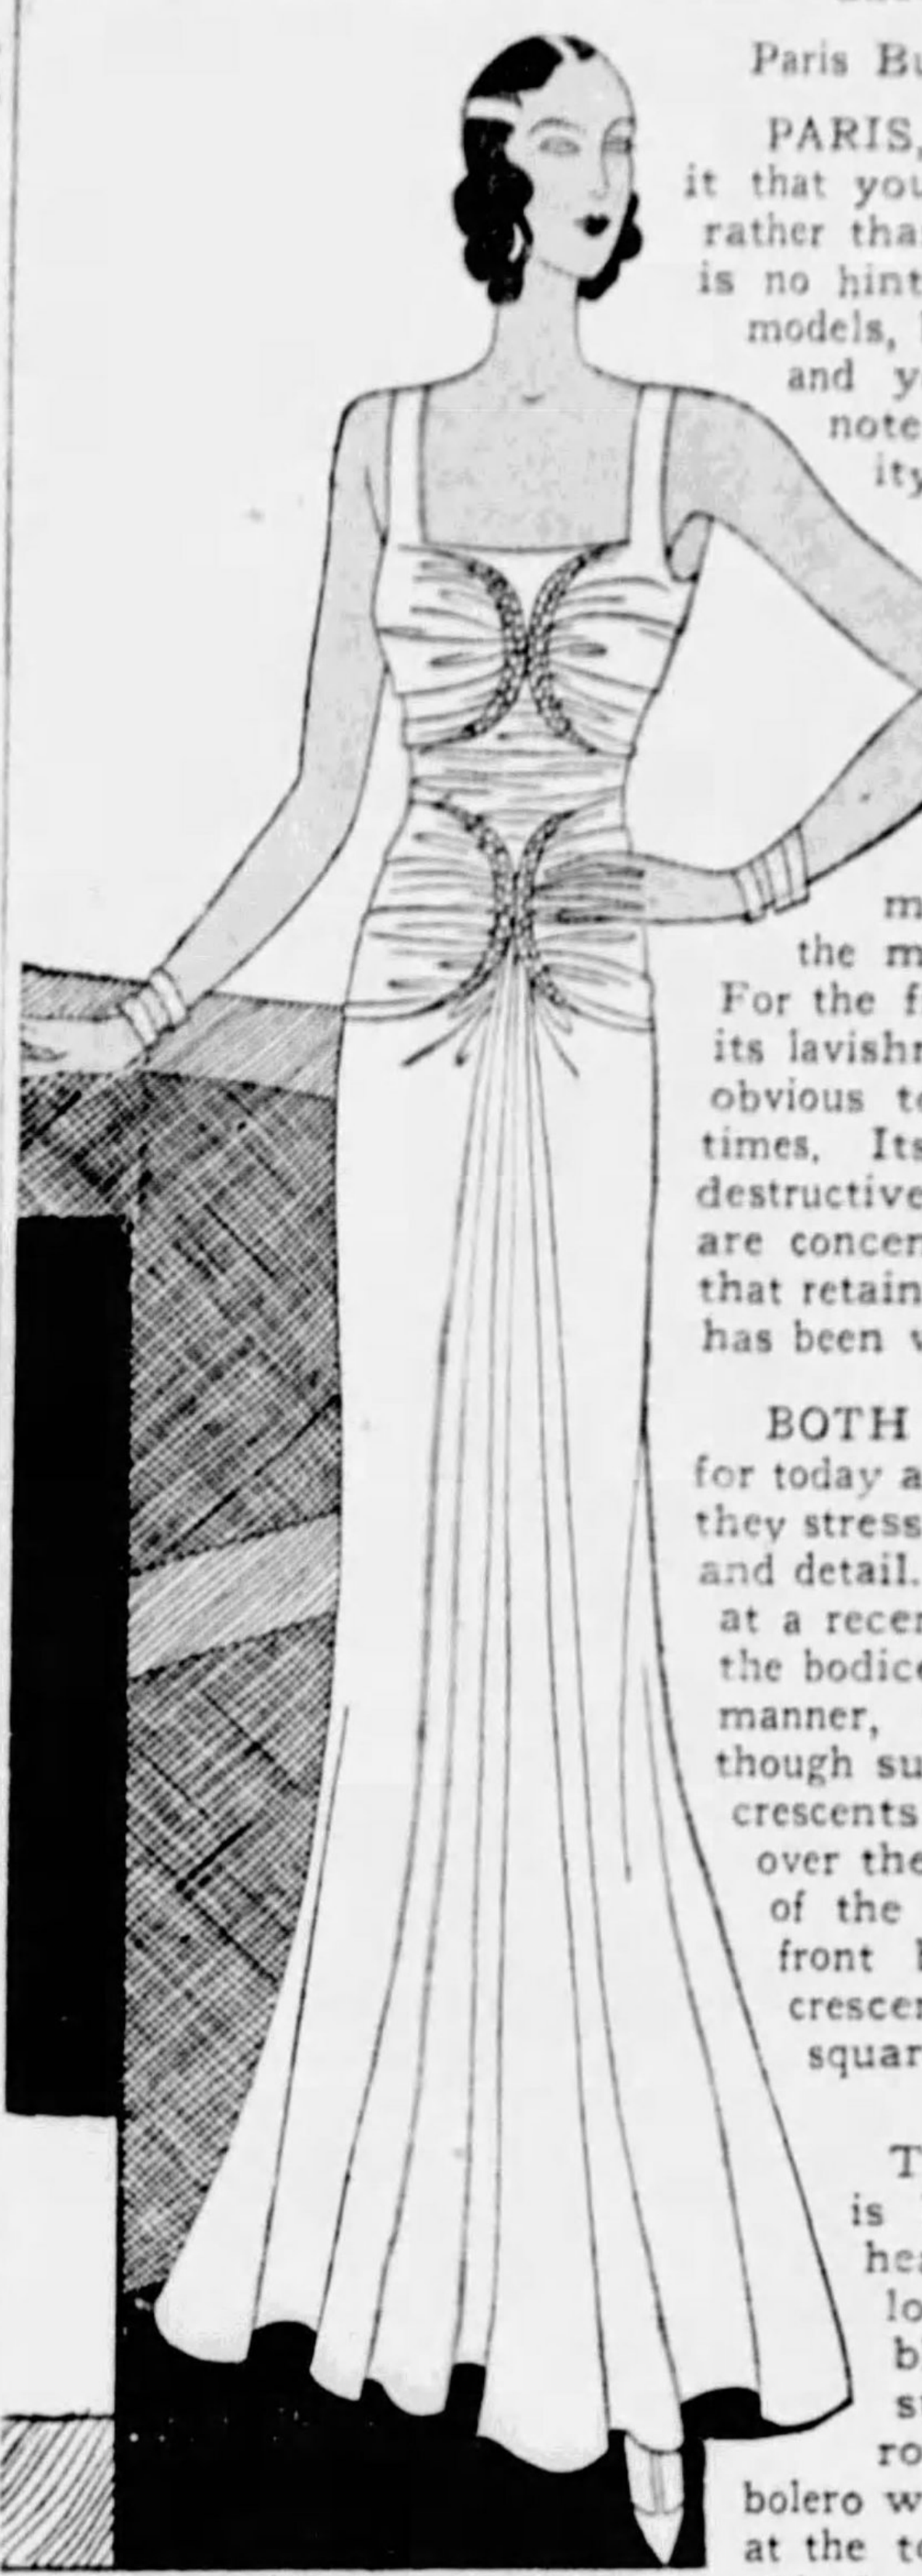
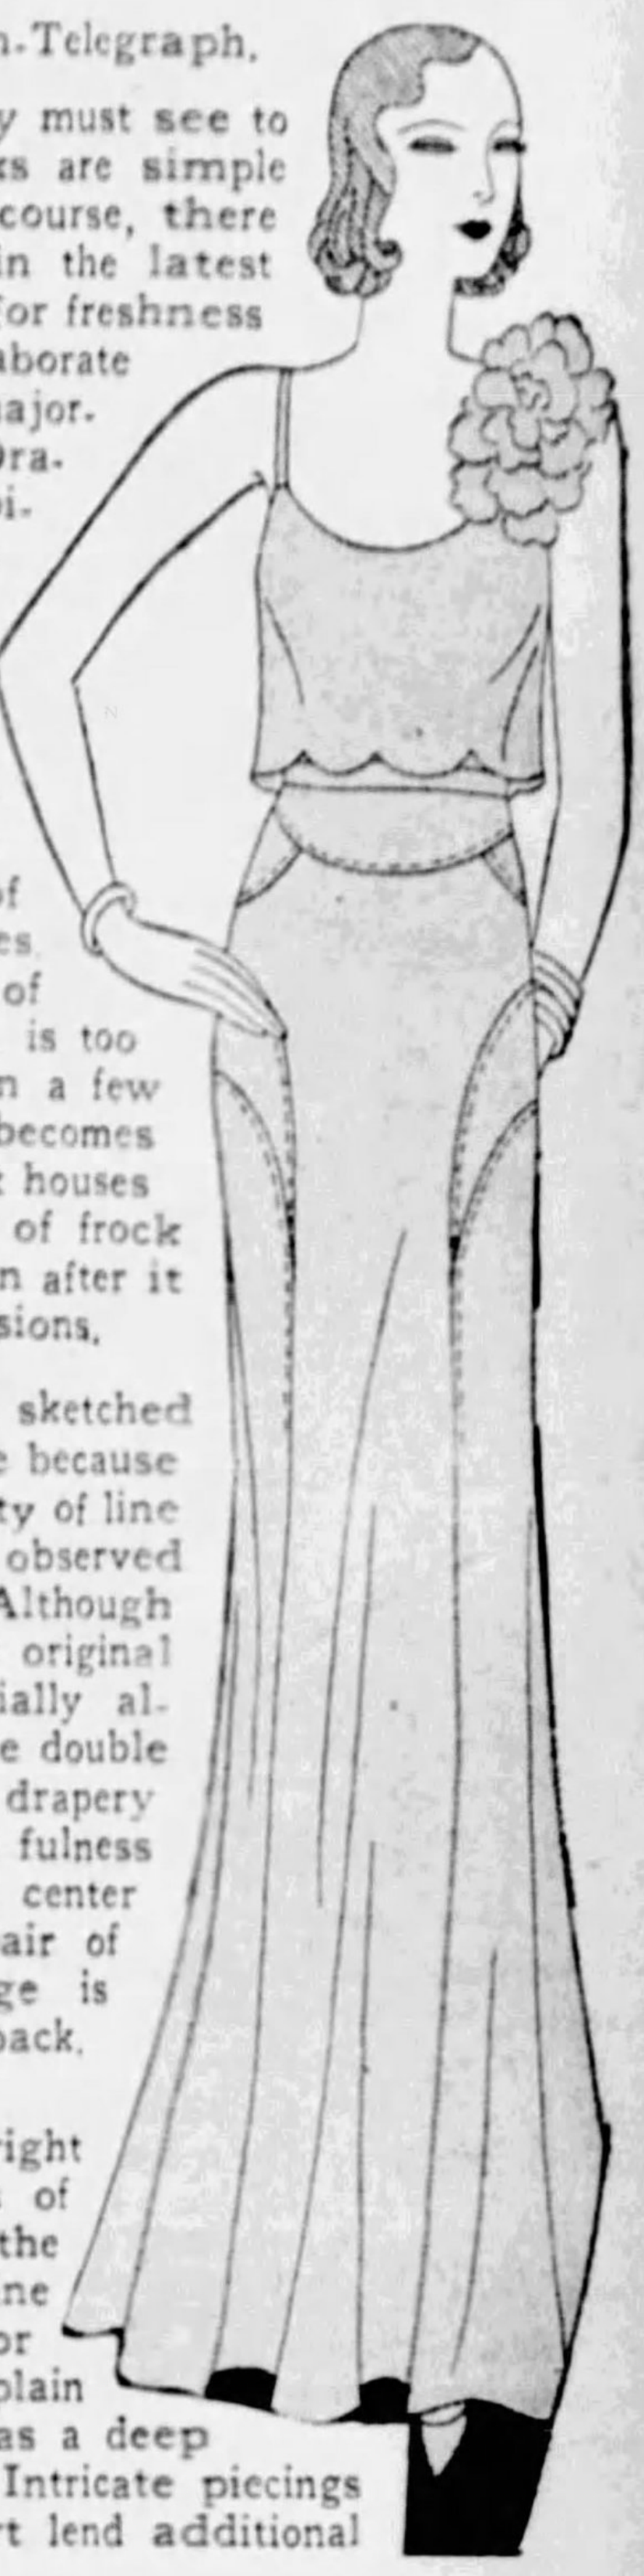
DESIGNERS URGE SIMPLICITY FOR SUMMER EVENING WEAR

—Sketched in Paris—





Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 1.—You simply must see to it that your new evening frocks are simple rather than sophisticated. Of course, there is no hint of the too girlish in the latest models, but rather a striving for freshness and youthfulness. The elaborate note is absent from the majority of the new frocks. Draperies, trimmings, bizarre details are not seen. A simple frock of the type illustrated can be worn throughout a season ever so many more times than one of the more breathtaking types. For the frock, that, by virtue of its lavishness is much noticed, is too obvious to be worn more than a few times. Its very obviousness becomes destructive and that is why most houses are concentrating on the kind of frock that retains its fresh appeal even after it has been worn for several occasions.

BOTH OF THE FROCKS sketched for today are eminently wearable because they stress an exquisite simplicity of line and detail. The first model was observed at a recent smart premiere. Although the bodice is draped in a most original manner, the frock is essentially although subtly simple. There are double crescents of strass to hold the drapery over the bust and hips. The fulness of the skirt falls from the center front beneath the lower pair of crescents. The decolletage is square at both front and back.

THE MODEL to the right is by Molyneux. It is of heavy crepe romain in the lovely new aquamarine blue, so much liked for summer use. The plain round-necked bodice has a deep bolero with a scalloped edge. Intricate piecings at the top of the flaring skirt lend additional interest to this charming and refreshingly youthful model.

REPORT SCORES COAL STRIFE

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP.)—A report of the Russell Sage Foundation, made public today, says that "so long as a large part of the coal industry of the United States remains disorganized in its human relations, there can be little co-operation in the elimination of waste and the conservation of coal."

This conclusion was reached by the industrial studies department of the foundation after examination of the administration of agreements between miners' and operators' organizations during the last 30 years.

The report states that neither the economic problem of the coal industry as a whole, which, it says, is complicated by traces of Communistic agitation, nor the dissension within the United Mine Workers, can be dealt with effectively until both miners and operators are so organized as to be able to function together in consideration of their joint interests.

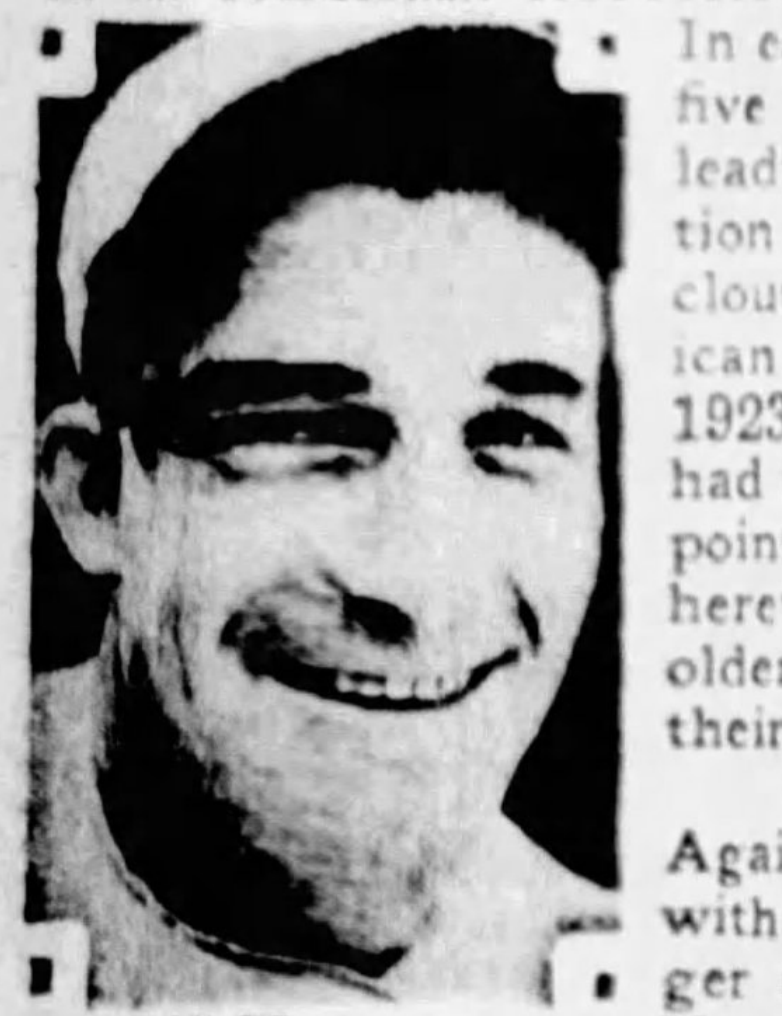
Why Averages Differ.
National Hurling Aided.
Pirate Hitting Feeble.
Coast's Track Edge.
Unusual Baseball Feats.
Flanagan Turns Pro.

HEAVIER COVER, LONG USAGE FACTORS

WHAT'S THE CAUSE of the sudden shift that shows batting averages in the American League towering above those in the National? Heretofore just the opposite has held true. In each of the last three seasons, and in five of the last seven campaigns, the leading hitter of the Heydler organization had a higher mark than the top clouter of the junior wheel. The American hasn't boasted a .400 sticker since 1923. The National in the meantime has had three and another who fell only two points short. Averages in the main heretofore have been much higher in the older loop. American Leaguers claimed their pitching was better.



Al Simmons

But now it's all the other way. Against the averages of .370 to .380 with which Buzz Arlett, Walter Roettger and others have been leading the National in batting, Al Simmons, Mickey Cochrane, Babe Ruth and others have been above .400 most of the time in the American. The marked difference holds good as you go down the comparative tables. In the latest weekly averages the American had 54 men hitting .300 or better against only 43 in the National.

ONE EXPLANATION IS that though the younger body went in for the raised seams on the ball, it did not adopt the heavier cover. Pie Traynor reports that while in Philadelphia recently he was taken through the factory by a foreman and given a demonstration showing that the National League ball has a five-ply cover against a four-ply cover on the American pellet.

In admitting that the baseballs otherwise are similar except for the name stamped on the cover and the coloring of the stitches, a representative of one of the firms jointly supplying the spheres offers three reasons for the fact that National figures have not kept pace with American marks.

THE FIRST IS that the National authorizes its umpires to rub the gloss off the baseballs before the latter are taken to the playing field. The American forbids this practice and consequently the pellets in that circuit are harder for the pitchers to handle.

The second item is that the resin bag has long been a part of the pitching equipment in the National. It has been there for the pitcher to use as often as he desired. The same open and unlimited use was forbidden in the American until last Wednesday. Prior to that the hurlers were handicapped, as compared with those in the National.

THE THIRD REASON cited is that National League umpires are under orders to keep one ball in play as long as feasible, and many darkened spheres harder to judge and therefore more difficult to hit, are fooling the batters as a result of these instructions. The American League arbiters, on the other hand, are throwing out slightly scuffed or soiled balls and replacing them with new ones just as frequently as in the past. As the gloss-rubbing and resin bag customs were not new, they can hardly be said to have had any more effect this year than in previous seasons, but with the addition of the system that keeps an old ball in play long after it has become darkened and roughened, the National League pitchers undeniably have an advantage over American League flingers.

Ben Sankey

NOW IF SOMEBODY else will come along and explain what ails the Pirate hitters, and how the slump may be speedily ended, Jewels Ens will be grateful. Ben Sankey has contributed a better punch than Tommy Thevenow, but the club's offensive in the main is sadly off color.

It reached its lowest point of the season in the fourth straight defeat yesterday, when Bob Smith held the Bucs to two hits and gave them their first shutout. A club batting average of only .256 isn't normal for the Rovers, and it isn't going to stay at those figures, any more than a mark of .251 may be expected to continue for Brooklyn, the best hitting club in the league, but the anticipated brace is long overdue.

THAT BRACE MUST come into evidence immediately if the Corsairs are to take advantage of their first extended stay at home, which begins today with the opening of the five-game series against the Braves, another club that has been skidding, but that is always troublesome to Pittsburgh.

Home games have not been profitable to the locals so far. Though breaking even in 28 games abroad they have won only three out of 11 at Forbes Field, and Cincinnati is the only club they have beaten here to date. That's a lot of ground to make up, but the Bucs look equal to the job, once they get going. All together now, to make seventh place a memory.

FOR THE SIXTH time in succession, and the tenth time in the last 11 years, Pacific Coast athletes have romped away with the honors in the annual I. C. 4-A meet, Southern California and Stanford taking first and second places with scores two to one better than that of Penn, in third place, the leading eastern team. The coast may contend that greater athletes are bred out there, but easterners will continue to believe that the real explanation of far-western supremacy in track as well as in tennis lies in the climate that gives the Californians months more of outdoor training, practice and competition than the East finds possible.

THE LAST TWO days produced two unusual individual performances in the National League. Adam Comorosky, Pirate leftfielder, turned in a double play unassisted and Wally Gilbert, of the Robins, made six hits in a game.

Tris Speaker holds the record for unassisted double plays by an outfielder. He made two in one season and one in another, for a total of three. Gilbert took seven times at bat to make his six hits, which keeps him out of the select circle of six in six. No major leaguer has made six hits in six times up since Paul Waner did it August 26, 1926.

LATHAM (PETE) FLANAGAN, who played right end on the Carnegie Tech football team for three years and completed his varsity career last season, has just signed a contract to play professional football with the Portsmouth (O.) club next fall. He had many offers to play pro ball, but decided to throw his lot with Portsmouth because it is not far from Pittsburgh.

Latham Flanagan

Though Flanagan's college athletic career is over, he is a student in the five-year architectural course at Carnegie and has another year to go to school before he can receive his degree. He intends to continue his classroom work and play football week-ends.

FLANAGAN WILL BE in fast company at Portsmouth, the roster including such stars as Willis Glasgow, former all-America halfback from Iowa; Father Lumpkin, of Georgia Tech; Jap Douds, of W. & J., and others. While Latham never gained the fame of some other ends during his Tartan career, he is what is known as a football player's player. Opposing teams always have rated him highly because of his sturdy defensive play. He is big enough to stand the gaff of the pro game, towering 6 feet 2 inches and weighing 190 pounds. Few Carnegie Tech players go into the pro ranks as they are not encouraged to do so by the athletic authorities at the school, but in Flanagan's case, with another year in school and the necessity after that of establishing himself in a comparatively slow business, his friends feel that he has made a wise decision.

AMERICAN PROS ALL LOOM AS QUALIFIERS

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 1.—(AP.)—MacDonald Smith, 38-year-old United States professional golfer making a sentimental pilgrimage back to the town where he learned the game, carded a par-shattering 70 in the wind and rain at Barry today to take the lead in the first qualifying round of the British open championship.

The slender, sandy-haired Scot, who has been close a lot of times, but has never won a major golf title, burned up the course of his old home town with a 36-34, putting together five straight 4s on the last five holes to take the lead.

He was two strokes better than the closest American, Tony Manero, who also played at Barry today.

FARRELL, SARAZEN TIED

Following Smith and Manero in the American contingent were Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen, both former United States open champions, with 75s. They played their round, however, over the admittedly harder Carnoustie course, as did Joe Turnesa and Joe Kirkwood. The former took a 76, Kirkwood a 77.

Playing with MacDonald Smith at Barry were Horton Smith, the Missourian, who had a 76; Willie Hunter, of Los Angeles, who had a 77, and Tommy Armour, also a former American champion, with a 79.

The field, which was evenly divided today between the two courses, will switch over tomorrow and play the final 18 holes of the qualifying rounds. The first 100 and ties will start play in the tournament proper Wednesday.

All of the American professionels seem safe enough if they but keep up the same pace tomorrow, or close to it.

AMATEURS DISTANCED

The American amateurs in the tournament did not fare so well. Johnny De Paolo, of Los Angeles, had an 83; Tom Maguire, of Stockton Cal., an 85; Joshua Crane, of Brookline, Mass., an 85, and Arthur Straub, of Maplewood, N. J., a 91.

Henry Cotton, one of the chief British hopes, took a 74 on the Barry course. Tomasco Genta, Argentine open champion, posted a 74.

Charles Whitcomb, Ryder Cup captain, took an 82 at Carnoustie, and must get a good round tomorrow to stay in the running.

Cyril Tolley, former amateur champion, unexpectedly scratched from the open.

It was a day to try the hearts of the stoutest golfers. With the fairways dripping and waterlogged, and the greens half flooded, the rough, blustering wind furnished a still further handicap to already well-nigh unplayable conditions. Indeed, for a time there was some thought of postponing the tournament because of the weather, something that has not happened since 1910.

Argentine Pros To Play in U. S.

BUENOS AIRES, June 1.—(AP.)—The Argentine Golf Association has authorized the professionals, Marcos Churio Thomas Genta, Jose Jurado and Hector Freccero, to play in the United States open championship.

The four Argentines now are in Europe competing in the British Open, which started at Carnoustie, Scotland, today.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Cold weather and wet grounds kept the Pirates and Braves idle this afternoon. Skipper Bill McKechnie led his Tribe into Pittsburgh today for the purpose of raising a five-day siege at Forbes Field, but all hostilities were postponed by the Pittsburgh officials, who this morning decided it would be unwise to attempt to stage a game. The contest was moved back to Saturday, July 18, when it will help to provide a doubleheader between the two teams at the Oakland orchard.

The cancellation of the sport was relished by the much-traveled Buccos, who have been battered from pillar to post by the rival clubs to such an extent they are in undisputed possession of seventh place in the National League race. On top of a 5-0 defeat yesterday in Chicago at the hands of the fast-going Cubs, the Buccos today had no first-string pitcher who has had sufficient rest to open a game. Hence, it will be seen that the extra day of relaxation is a cause of rejoicing in the Pittsburgh camp.

HOME FOR STY

The Freebooters have been traveling consistently since last February, but now they are home for two weeks or more, and in that time they may be able to recoup their fortunes to some extent. Losing, 2 to 0, yesterday at Wrigley Field, the Oaklanders rang up their fourth consecutive setback, all of which were administered by the Bears.

The Pirates returned home last Friday after a long and arduous trip, which took them to six of the seven enemy battle grounds. Although they were in a bad way when they departed they were able to cop eight of the 14 scraps while competing on foreign soil, they besting clubs like the Robins, Giants, Cubs and Cardinals. But as quickly as they reached the Oakland Orchard they collapsed.

FIRST SHUTOUT

The reverse of yesterday was the first shutout the Buccos have sustained, but the contest was the tenth which the Ensmen have dropped to the Bruins in 13 struggles. So far at Forbes Field they have beaten only the Reds, the Howleymen being gracious enough to bow in all three of their fights.

Manager Ens and Owner Dreyfuss are likely to make some big changes in the Pittsburgh battlefront in the event the club fails to respond in the next few days. Gus.

Mr. Ellis also gave gold medals to the individual members of the team.

Auto Racer Hurt At Quakerstown

QUAKERSTOWN, Pa., June 1.—(AP.)—William Smith, 25, of Abington, Pa., was injured yesterday when his racing automobile overturned and was wrecked during the races at Bucks County fair track.

Smith was removed to the Quakerstown Community Hospital, where he was found to have suffered internal injuries and a broken collarbone.

Mushballers Play Long Game in Rox

Sport Vignettes

Louie Schneider finally has come into his own after a stormy career on the roaring highways of automobile racing . . . Thirty years old, he was engaging in his third race at the Indianapolis track when he drove to victory after Billy Arnold was forced out at the 400-mile mark last Saturday. He finished third last year . . Records of the A. A. A. reveal the fact that Louie, a former motorcycle policeman in Indianapolis, has been the "bad boy" of the racing profession . . . He has been set down several times for infractions of the rules, but always has come back after serving a period of probation, and now he's up at the top of the heap after having come to be regarded as more or less incorrigible.

Arnold's amazing racing luck finally deserted him in this latest skirmish . . . Off in front, as was the case last year, when he sped to a non-stop victory, Arnold had a lead of more than seven miles when he threw a wheel and saw his car go up in flames and barely escaped with his life . . . Billy will be back . . . He is a genius as a driver, one of those impetuous young fellows who jam down on the gas from start to finish and look upon the game from a fatalistic viewpoint that will not admit defeat.

The nineteenth Indianapolis Speedway race was one that will be long remembered. It marked only the second time that the drivers were unable, because of the elements, to get away on scheduled time . . . In 1915, the race was postponed for two days because of wretched weather conditions, and, in 1926, the race was cut to 400 miles because of rain . . . . The jockeying with the rain last Saturday, with the officials forcing the field to slow down several times because of the slippery going, gave the onlookers an additional thrill or two by calling their attention to the extra hazard . . . Schneider, the winner, made only one stop, for gasoline and to change a tire . . . He drove a steady, conservative race, according to reports, lying back, but always within reach of the leaders and in position to seize opportunity when it came knocking . . . He had been tinkering with his car at the scene since last March, and, with the experience born of his previous participation, was set to make a real bid for victory . . . He first competed at Indianapolis in 1928.

They say that Aldo (Buff) Donnelli, the soccer star and former football captain of Duquesne University, is so nicknamed because Buffalo Bill was his boyhood hero . . . He came to be known as Buffalo Bill and in time this was shortened to Buff . . . Jimmy Fair, formerly of New Martinsville, W. Va., now of New York, one of the best news telegraphers this writer ever has seen, who is at his best when sending round-by-round descriptions of important boxing bouts from the ringside, has a kid brother, Harold, who is the captain of the Marietta (O.) College track team and will be graduated this month . . . He majored in chemistry and geology . . . Pretty soon the Pirates and Cubs will finish the job of trading all of their players to each other, and then Rajah Hornsby will have a real alibi for not winning the National League pennant. —HARRY KECK.

LOCAL GERMANS SEE MAXIE

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, June 1.—(INS.)—With two days of fairly fast boxing and calisthenics under his belt, Champion Max Schmeling was up early today for a jog over the country roads with calisthenics and swimming slated for this afternoon.

Two thousand fans, many of them Germans from Pittsburgh, crowded the Temple of Music yesterday for Max's first indoor workout. Max showed considerable improvement in his timing, rocking Pedro Lopez, Tiny Debolt and Tony Marullo, his three sparring partners, with a series of short, jarring rights to the head, which he varied occasionally with a snappy left hook.

Der Maxie also showed his versatility by delivering a two-handed attack to the body of each of the sparring mates, beating a tattoo on the ribs with short lefts and rights. Max will not work out publicly today, but will be in action again tomorrow afternoon.

JOHNNY DOEG WINS TROPHY

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., June 1.—(AP.)—John Hope Doeg, Newark, N. J., holder of the national singles championship, defeated Berkeley Bell, of Austin, Tex., in straight sets in the final round of the Orange Lawn Tennis club's invitation tournament yesterday and thereby gained permanent possession of the Thomas A. Gillespie cup.

Doeg needed less than an hour to vanquish the Texan by scores of 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. Hornsby Hurt In Auto Accident

LINCOLN, Ill., June 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Rogers F. Hornsby, wife of the manager of the Chicago National League baseball team, was cut and bruised near Atlanta, Ill., in an automobile accident.

She was en route from St. Louis to Chicago to join her husband.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—It does an old-timer's lumbago good to see how those Brooklyns behaved for Robbie. According to the grapevine dots and dashes the front office was set to hang the gate on Wilbert for the way the Robins have been nose-diving lately. Then came that series with the Giants and the way the boys rallied for Robbie they thought they were playing at Verdun. If Uncle Wilbert don't sit solid in Brooklyn from now on, then the Rock of Gibraltar is a pebble and Texas Guinan is a choir girl. P. S.—I still don't see how those Bavarian scientists went 10 miles up in the air without meeting some of the Red Sox pitchers.

Sandlot League Nines Set to Clash in Important Tussles This Evening

REDS FINALLY DEFEAT CARDS IN ST. LOUIS

By Associated Press

Just by emphasizing the superiority the eastern clubs of the American League have shown over their western rivals so far, the Cleveland Indians, who failed to win a game in their stand against the East, have climbed back to a .500 average and fourth place in a little over a week of campaigning against the clubs of their home sector.

Some effective pitching by Willis Hudlin and Wesley Ferrell gave the Indians a 6-to-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers yesterday in their last game before moving East for another intersectional round. It was Cleveland's seventh straight victory and Detroit's fifth successive defeat.

A'S, SOX SPLIT

The Philadelphia Athletics, pounding the New York Yankees all over the lot, held sway in the east as well as in the west but could not do so well against the Boston Red Sox. The A's split two double headers with the cellar occupants over the week-end to finish the home-section campaign with eight victories and three defeats. Timely hitting against Milt Gaston gave the Athletics the first game yesterday, 7-4, but the Red Sox turned in the second and won, 7-3, on good pitching by Morris and Moore.

The Yankees, shoved down to third place, picked up a game in Washington yesterday as Babe Ruth's ninth homer of the season gave them the runs that produced a 4-to-2 victory.

The St. Louis Browns improved their own record for the intrasectional play and lowered Chicago's by taking the only game between the two, 6 to 2, piling up four runs in the eighth as Jim Levey hit a homer inside the park with two on base.

CUBS, ROBINS WIN

After suffering various indignities in earlier games, the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Robins stepped out to compile the best intrasectional records in the National League. Bob Smith pitched a two-hit game for the Cubs against Pittsburgh yesterday, giving them their fourth straight victory over the Pirates, 5-0. The Cubs won eight out of 11 games. The Robins won seven and lost three and were just one strike short of their eighth victory and a tie with Boston for fourth place in their second game yesterday. After winning the first game from the Braves, 9-2, Brooklyn led 3-1 in the ninth inning of the second, and Hollis Thurston had two strikes on Randy Moore. But Randy clouted a homer, his second of the game, instead of taking the third strike, and the game ended in a 3-3 tie when darkness stopped it after the tenth.

GIANTS BEAT PHILS

The Giants and Phillies each ended their intra-sectional series with even breaks as New York won yesterday's game 10-5. John Berly gave the Phils 15 hits but escaped serious trouble.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who regained the lead with seven victories in 11 games, finally lost a game to Cincinnati on their home grounds yesterday. The Cards took the first half of a double header 7-5 as Paul Derringer won his first start, but Johnny Ogden stopped them with seven hits in the second game and the Reds won 7-2 for their first triumph in St. Louis since April 22, 1929.

Earl Combs, Yankee outfielder, was stopped yesterday after hitting safely in 29 straight games.

THOMAS LOSES TO FINTEX

Pitcher Smith, of the Fintex nine, rendered the bats of the J. L. Thomas nine well nigh helpless in an independent tussle yesterday afternoon, the Fintexers winning by a score of 6 to 1. Smith limited the City Leaguers to five scattered hits, Jacobs' triple being the only worth-while blow struck by the losers.

The North Side Buicks won another one, defeating Grandview, 4 to 2. Woods hurled a fine game for the Buicks.

Linden Grove defeated Stowe, 8 to 6, in a free-hitting game, and the Tyson Aces took the Quaill Firemen, 10 to 1. De Pasquales walloped the Mallins, 13 to 7. The Gelberts outlasted the Lindmore nine to win by a score of 8 to 5.

St. Clair Frogs defeated the McGraths, 4 to 1; Immaculate Heart defeated the Crafton Community nine, 9 to 2, and Melrose downed the Harrisons in a closely contested fray, 2 to 1. The North Siders nosed out the Hill Toppers, 9 to 8, and Becktown pounded out an 18-to-3 victory over Brockton. The North Side Elks downed Bridgeville in another close one, 6 to 5. The Alta-Monts defeated the Industry club, 13-12.

The Homestead Grays were in Alliance, winning easily in the largest-score game of the day, 22 to 2.

In a Steel City League fray, Snee Dairy defeated the Caruso club, 6 to 4.

Between Rounds

The Hickey Park management, which has Tony Herrera and Eddie Anderson in its main bout next Thursday night, is working on Eddie Shea-Tommy Paul and Jimmy Thomas-Frankie Genaro matches for future dates.

Baby Joe Gans and Jackie Brady are slated to do the windup honors at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night, with Battling Gizzy and Sammy Dorfman following a week later.

Bobby Grant, Charleston welterweight, knocked out Jack Blackburn, of Memphis, in the sixth round of a bout at Charleston, W. Va., Saturday.

Eddie Anderson arrived in town today for his bout with Tony Herrera and began working out this afternoon in Ross' gym, East End.

TRACK SEASON HERE TAME

By JESS CARVER

If something doesn't happen in the Tri-State Conference pretty soon to knock those Geneva College Covenanters from the top of the track and field heap, they may as well quit holding the annual conference meet. They've had seven meets now, and Geneva has won 'em all. It's getting so that even the Covenanters, who take their athletics seriously, fail to get more than a near-beer kick out of winning, at least in track.

The tumult and shouting of this year's intercollegiate track season is just about over. There really hasn't been a great deal of shouting this year; its been a rather quiet spring, especially hereabouts. West Virginia had the best team in the district, with Geneva second and Pitt third.

As far as national prominence is concerned, the tri-state district can do little boasting. Unless the boys make some sort of a showing at the N. C. A. A. meet in Chicago this week . . . won't our faces be red?

W. VA. TEAM BEST

Pitt, Tech, West Virginia and Geneva will be represented at the Chicago carnival. Pitt will send Everette Utterback and his bum heel; Tech has entered Johnny Karcis and Tom Coulter; West Virginia has Calloway, Fraser and Hill, and Geneva, Fair (Please) Thomas and Spencer available, its two Negro stars. Spencer ought to finish right up in the money in the high jump.

Harry Brownlee, of Westminster, came through like a true champion in retaining his individual title at the conference meet. He landed four first places, being the first gent in the history of the league to accomplish such a feat. Besides, he broke two records (both being his own) and landed a double triumph in two of the toughest events on the program, the hurdles.

You see, with Geneva annually a hot-shot favorite to win the team trophy, the matter of crowning an individual champion becomes of almost chief importance and certainly of the greatest interest.

DRIVER IMPROVES

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., June 1.—Robert Mayer, auto driver injured in the 50-mile race at Junction Park, Saturday, was reported recovering in the Beaver Valley Hospital.

HARTZ DEMANDS RACE RECHECK

INDIANAPOLIS, June 1.—(AP.)—An official recheck of the records has been demanded to determine whether Louie Schneider, Indianapolis, or Fred Frame, Los Angeles, won the 500-mile race here Saturday.

Harry Hartz, Los Angeles, for whom Frame was driving, made the demand. W. D. Edenburn, Detroit, chief steward of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, said a hearing would be held this morning.

At the same time, the officials will hear a protest from Louis Meyer, South Gate, Cal., that he finished third in Myron Steven's car instead of fourth. Ralph Hepburn, of Los Angeles, was flagged in third place and Edenburn said yesterday's recheck showed no change, with 16 seconds separating the cars at the finish.

Red (Phil) Shafer, of Des Moines, Ia., also protested against the officials calling him out of the race and forcing him to go to his pit for conference on a complaint that he had passed a competitor in violation of instructions during the rain.

Schneider, according to the official records, which have been rechecked once, crossed the finish line 59 seconds ahead of Frame.

When the prize money is distributed to the drivers at a dinner tonight, Schneider, as things now stand, will receive $29,250, officials figured.

Frame, for second place, will get $12,650, and Hepburn, $6,350. Myron Stevens, as original starter in the car Louie Meyer drove into fourth place, will be given $4,000; Russell Snowberger, Philadelphia, fifth, will get $3,500. Jimmy Gleason, Philadelphia, sixth, won $2,200; Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles, seventh, $1,800; W. H. Stubblefield, Los Angeles, eighth, $1,600; Cliff Bergere, Los Angeles, ninth, $1,500, and Chet Miller, Detroit, tenth, $1,400.

Mercur Gets Big Pro Tennis Offer

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 1.—(AP.)—Fritz Mercur, sixth ranking tennis player in the United States last year, said yesterday that he had been offered $12,000 to join Bill Tilden in the professional ranks.

Mercur asserted that he prefers to remain an amateur and hopes to be reinstated in September. He was suspended last September.

LIVEZEY TO COACH

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 1.—Jack Livezey, captain of the Penn State baseball team, who will be graduated a week from today, has been appointed head coach of athletics at the Canton, Pa., High School. Livezey is a graduate of Philadelphia Northeast High School and played both baseball and football for Penn State during his four-year term here.

ARNOLD DRAWS LONG LAYOFF

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 1.—(AP.)—Billy Arnold, Chicago, will be in the hospital for about two months as a result of injuries received in the 500-mile automobile race here Saturday, according to Dr. H. R. Allen.

Louie Schneider, former Indianapolis motorcycle policeman, won the race when Arnold, the pace setter for almost 400 miles, lost a wheel, skidded sideways, was in collision with the machine driven by Luther Johnson, South Bend, Ind., and crashed into a retaining wall.

Arnold's injuries, Dr. Allen said, consisted of a double fracture of the pelvis, a deep cut in the left thigh and severe burns about the right hip.

Tony Gulotta, Kansas City; Luther Johnson, Wilbur Shaw, Wild Bill Cummings and Joe Russo, all of Indianapolis; Harry Butcher, Wilmington, Ill., were other racers injured slightly when misfortune overtook them.

Arnold won $8,550 in lap prize money and $355 of the $10,000 consolation prize divided among the drivers who did not finish among the first 10.

DERBY FIELD REDUCED

LONDON, June 1.—(AP.)—Carmellus, a 33-to-1 shot and Spanish Main, also at long odds in the betting, were withdrawn today from the Epsom Downs Derby, cutting the field of the racing classic Wednesday to 29.

Carmellus, owned by Sir Charles Pulley, strained a tendon in a practice gallop. No reason was given for the withdrawal of Spanish Main, which is owned by Sir Charles Hyde.

TOURBILLION WINS

LONGCHAMP, France, June 1.—(AP.)—Marcel Boussac's Tourbillon, by Ksar out of Durban, won the Prix Lupin Produce Stakes, worth $1,700 yesterday. J. Prat's Cakewalk was second and Baron Edouard de Rothschild's Jus de Raisin third. The winner, a favorite, paid $16.50 for $10.

Irish Soccer Team Wins Second Match

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP.)—The all-Ireland champion Gaelic football team won their second match of the McGovern Challenge Cup competition yesterday, defeating New York's selected team, 10 to 5, before 30,000 spectators at the Yankee Stadium.

The all-Ireland team won the first game, 9 to 6, and leads in total points, 19-11.

SOCCER FINAL SUNDAY

Javelin Pierces Cadet's Mouth, Brain Injured

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 1.—(AP.)—James Glattly, 23, of Hot Springs, S. D., a member of the U. S. Military Academy track team, was in a hospital here today suffering from head injuries he received in the Army-West Virginia University track and field meet Saturday.

Glattly ran into a javelin that had struck the ground near him. The butt of the shaft entered his mouth. He suffered concussion of the brain and possibly a skull fracture.

The youth, competing in the javelin event, continued in the trials after he was injured, but later complained of pain and was taken to the hospital. He won second place in the javelin throw.

LINKS PROGRAM LIGHT TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

More than 100 golfers of the Philadelphia Company cavorted over the Stanton Heights Golf Club links today in their annual links field day. A. P. Weiblinger was in charge of affairs. Following the golf contest the players will partake of a delicious dinner, to be provided this evening by Manager John Abt.

The women at Schenley Park have organized a new club, to be henceforth konwn as the Woschengo Club, and today they are holding their first event of the season, an 18-hole medal play affair. Mrs. Clara Powell is president; Mrs. Ann Friez, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Eva Blair, chairman of the events committee.

Aside from S. D. Cantelou breaking Westmoreland's record with the new ball on Memorial Day, when he scored a 68, Johnny Harper, aspiring Chartiers Heights luminary, went out and had 16 par figures and a couple of birdies for a 68 at that layout.

Shannopin's team, which included Professional Charley Manning, F. L. (Fritz) Stout, Jr., Ellsworth Giles, Jr., and Sherman Erb, went down to Montour Heights yesterday to beat a team of that course, 13 to 5, under Nassau system scoring. The Montour Heights combination included Professional Johnny Manley, Herb F. Miller, Jr., former Edgewood champ; Chuck Cooper and Bob Davidson.

John Jay Burke, city office manager for the Allegheny County Parks, reports that all of 670 golfers turned the turnstiles at the South Park country links on Saturday—which was some mob to overrun any links.

Oakmont has been crowded with entrants practicing for the qualifying round of the national open championship, to be held there a week from today. Bob Graham, Schenley pro, had a 78 yesterday, and thinks two of 'em will be good enough to win him one of the eight places allotted for those who will proceed to Inverness.

In a five-ball match at Oakmont yesterday, Dutch Loeffler and Greer McIlvain, state amateur champion, played Watts Gunn, West Penn king; Al Bauer, Jr., and Joe Ludes, assistant pro, the first-named pair winning when the noted greenkeeper dropped a birdie 4 on the last hole, 1 up.

CUMBERLAND ROUTS GUVS

Back in first place in the Middle Atlantic League, the Cumberland Colts strengthened their position at the top of the heap by crushing Charleroi yesterday, 14 to 4. The Colts hammered two Guv hurlers for 16 safe blows.

Huntington nosed out Beckley, 4 to 2, getting 12 safe hits to five for Beckley. The losers played errorless ball, Huntington making three misplays.

At Wheeling, the Altoona Railroaders defeated the Stogies, 5 to 3, although the Smokes garnered one more hit, getting 11. Jachym and Yocke were unable to hold Altoona in the pinches.

Charleston nosed out Clarksburg, 5 to 4, three Clarksburg errors contributing to the team's downfall.

Fairmont had an easy time with Johnstown, slugging out an 8-to-1 victory.

Yesterday's scheduled game between Hagerstown and Scottdale was postponed until today, when a double-header will be played.

Sandlot baseball followers have a banner list of encounters from which to pick and choose this evening. Many of the leading leagues have important tussles carded, many of which will have important bearing on the settling of the first-half titles.

Out Library way, the Rieck-McJunkin nine and the Pittsburgh Coal team will put on a game that was washed out a couple of weeks ago. This game will be played in the Commercial and Industrial loop. The Milkmen are in the undefeated ranks. With Reliance Life ahead, Bill Stuhlfire and his gang must win tonight to stay in the race. It is quite possible that the Coalers will take a look at Eddie Imhoff and his slants.

LIFERS AT SWISSVALE

Swissvale fans will get an opportunity this evening to see the Reliance Life outfit in action in the West Penn League. George Miller will take his undefeated team to do battle with Manager Walsh's Community nine. Burkey, Conley and Schenk are all ready to go to the mound for Swissvale. Spencer probably will do the hurling for the league leaders.

East End fans will see the hard-hitting Homestead Grays in action this evening at the Homewood playgrounds. Daly feels that his club will stop the Posey aggregation this time. Abe Martin is in line to pitch. Daly is dickering with Sisler, another left-hander, for use against the Grays.

In the Steel City League, the East End Cardinals will make an effort to increase their winning streak. The Cards have won four in a row. Donohue and Hussey are twirling fine baseball and the teams as a whole is hitting. However, beating the D. J. Brodericks at Marshall Field is a tough job, as Manager Grabowski has an eye on the first half championship himself.

SHOEMEN FACE THOMAS

The Book Shoe team will make an effort to keep in step with Homewood in the City League race by stopping the J. L. Thomas nine at Olympia Park.

Pinkie Martin, outfielder of the J. L. Thomas club, was given his release yesterday. He plans to sign with another City League club.

PIRATE-BRAVE GAME OFF

Suhr and George Grantham are two regulars who have been performing in a very unsatisfactory manner, so that it would not be surprising to see Ens do something radical on the side of the diamond whereon these two infielders operate. The whole club is in a batting slump, speaking collectively, although of late the clever Waner boys have showed signs of a big awakening.

TRADES RUMORED

The Pirates also are reported to be stirring up trade winds. The swap that sent Catcher Rolly Hemsley to the Cubs in return for Catcher Earl Grace is not the finish of the David Harum trick, if the local officials can make any other constructive moves. They still have two weeks in which to accomplish their desires and it is likely there will be plenty of negotiations opened in that fortnight.

Bob Smith, converted infielder, who formerly toiled for the Braves, was the fly in the ointment yesterday as the Buccos took it on the button. With Hemsley receiving his slants, Bob held the Freebotters to two hits while the Bears were pecking away at Heine Meine for 10 safeties.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Tumble

Local Market Quiet

BEAR MARKET LOWS MADE BY STOCKS

Fresh Break in Railroad Shares Paves Way for General List Decline

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Stocks made a dismal start on the last month of the second quarter today, slumping to new lows for the bear market.

Finding nothing in the news over the extended week-end to revive its low spirits, the market was rather easily influenced by a fresh break in the rails. Picotal industrials and utilities fought off the trend for a time during the first hour, but finally gave way before the sharp mark-downs in many of the carrier issues. The volume was around recent levels.

United States Steel common, quoted ex-dividend, dropped about 4 points and there was a similar loss in American Telephone. Many other leaders were off in the neighborhood of 2 points.

Absence of support for the rails resulted in a thin market.

Trade and economic reviews, as well as private expressed opinions of individual observers, found nothing in the industrial situation that should make for ultra-pessimism. Business, it is held in many quarters, has been showing seasonal slacknes, but o far there are no indications that the spring gains will be more than lost. Early summer always finds trade running into dullness; the difference this year, of course, is that the existing level is so low.

One encouraging point is that supply has been brought to a much closer relationship to demand.

It is apparent, nevertheless, that the summer is likely to be quiet. The fact that the autumn seasonal pickup in most lines is normally less lively than the spring improvement is doubtless an influence contributing to the current wave of speculative despair. Furthermore, second quarter earnings will be coming along in a few weeks, and the market apparently is doing its best to discount them.

Interest in the bond market focused on the announcement of the $800,000,000 long term loan which Wall street believes will be strongly supporter. The coupon rate offered by the government is well above the return available on short term securities; also, it is somewhat higher than the yield on outstanding Treasury obligations.

There was no change in the credit markets, call money renewing at 1½ per cent.

Treasury Offers Refunding Bonds

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Treasury is offering $800,000,000 15 to 18 years 3⅛ per cent bonds, the major portion of which will be used for refunding purposes.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 1.—With Canadian reports at hand telling of considerable moisture relief in drought districts of Canada, grain prices today underwent an early downturn. Advices indicated, however, that there were large areas in which the Canadian crop prospect was little short of a failure. Opening ⅝@1 cent lower, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started at ¼@⅝ decline and subsequently held near to the initial range.

LOCAL MARKET DROPS BACK SLOWLY

Securities Fluctuate in Fractional Range Here; Fuels Slightly Lower

Trading continued in small volume on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange at the opening of the new week. Prices in most instances showed only minor changes, with a tendency toward lower levels. The effect of the drop in Steel common on the "big board," however, caused a little selling in the afternoon and a few stocks reached new lows for the movement at figures slightly under previous bottoms.

There was some disposition to maintain positions in the market on the assumption that a turn in the New York list might take place at any time.

The fuels were dull and sagged slowly. Mesta Machine and Pittsburgh Plate Glass made new lows.

Graham Paige Motors Corporation produced 4,005 cars in May, compared to 2,554 in April and 4,797 in May, 1930.

DETROIT, June 1.—Chevrolet Motor Company built 113,852 cars and trucks in May, exceeding every month since July, 1929. May figures representing world production, compares with 113,187 units last May and with 106,096 units in April, this year. W. S. Knudsen, president, points out that dealers stocks of both new and used cars are now in far better shape than a year ago.

Olds Motor Works shipped 6,025 cars in May, against 7,574 in April. Current shipments are at the rate of 350 to 375 cars daily.

Reo Motor Car Company shipped 1,737 cars and trucks in May, against 1,023 in April and 1,759 in May, 1930. The company reports improvement in retail sales and has approximately three times as many unfilled orders as a year ago.

Stock Exchange Topics

Diamond Match Action Affects Chemical Companies

Action of Diamond Match in appropriating funds to erect a new plant to produce muriate of potash and chloric of potash is likely to be not without its effect on the chemical industry. These products are used extensively in the match business and the company, heretofore, has been a substantial buyer of the same. Manufacturing its own raw material it will, of course, remove a consumer from the chemical field.

Ingersoll Rand has been feeling the business depression this year. Earnings of the company closely follow conditions in the steel industry and, as a result, estimates have been heard that the company may not be able to cover its $2 dividend requirement for the first half. There has been consistent liquidation in the stock in recent months. Much of the selling has represented shares taken from strong boxes.

It is now learned officially that Southern California Edison this year will spend approximately $28,000,000 on its expansion program, compared with about $25,000,000 for this purpose in 1930. This is viewed as indicating confidence the management holds in the future of its territory. The company's earnings in the four months ending August 31, next, will be affected to some extent by the voluntary reduction of 20 per cent in agricultural power rates. Nevertheless, many believe that the decrease will be of nominal proportions, with some of the falling off in the receipts being offset by an increase in the consumption in the farming districts.

Reports have it that despite unfavorable operating conditions the net earnings of Liggett & Myers since the beginning of the current year have been in excess of those for the like 1930 period. Nothing on the matter has come from official quarters and interests acquainted with the affairs of the company are unwilling to make any estimate at present.

Indications are that the activities in the motor industry will taper off in the coming months. Some of the companies have been inclined to delay specifications against contracts for sheet steel and this has held up shipments. Normally, a situation such as this reflects moves on the part of the various managements to curtail the production. Some selling has come into the motor share on these latest developments.

Weakness in cotton futures has been responsible for moderate liquidation in Southern Railway and in other railroads operating in sections which depend to a considerable extent on prosperity among cotton growers. Conditions in these agricultural districts also have been responsible for switching from the carriers serving that particular territory into other shares recently. It is maintained in speculative quarters that future dividends on Southern Railway will be influenced by the cotton situation.

I. C. C. ACTION CHALLENGED

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The right of the Interstate Commerce Commission to prescribe a rate differential on shipments of lake cargo coal between Pennsylvania and Ohio and southern mines was challenged today by the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau.

A brief filed by the bureau with the commission asked reversal of a recent examiner's report recommending dismissal of complaints against the present differential.

Claiming the examiner's finding was contrary to the evidence, the brief contended coal shippers in the Pittsburgh area were entitled to a rate 35 cents a ton under that from Fairmont, W. Va., 80 cents below districts now paying a rate of $1.81 and 95 cents under those paying $1.96.

Coal cannot be sold from the Pittsburgh and Ohio districts except at a loss under the present differential, the brief continued, adding that "real competition between northern and southern coal will not result until these differentials are widened."

BIG GRAIN DEAL COMPLETED

MINNEAPOLIS, June 1.—Agreements called for consummation today of another grain deal involving millions of dollars, the second in a month.

The Farmers National Grain Corporation, acting for the Grain Stabilization Corporation, arranged to pay $10,000,000 for 14,000,000 bushels of bread and durum wheat. A month ago the same corporation paid $18,000,000 for 23,000,000 bushels.

This transactions, and others expected to be completed through the month of June, will wind up the stabilization of price activities of the government sponsored farm board, at least for the present.

La France Deposits Total $2,534,000

NEW YORK, June 1.—Holders of $2,534,000 par value of outstanding $3,089,000 of five-year 5½ per cent gold notes due June 1, 1931, of American La France and Foamite Corporation have deposited or pledged their notes with a committee of directors under an exchange and extension plan. The plan purposes the exchange of new five-year 5½ per cent notes, due June 1, 1936, for the old notes and payment of a cash premium of 2½ per cent on par value of the principal of the old notes deposited as well as an interest on the old notes due June 1, 1931.

Sees Improvement In Cotton Textiles

NEW YORK, June 1.—Distinct improvement in the fundamental position of the cotton textile industry is indicated by recent developments, according to a review issued by Dominick & Dominick.

Sales of standard cotton cloths exceeded production by about 9 per cent during the first four months of the year, while stocks on hand were reduced 23 per cent during the same period, and on April 30, were lower than at any time since October, 1927. Mills consumed 508,744 bales of cotton in April, or more than in any other month since April, 1930.

ticularly when Berlin sang "Alexander's Ragtime Band" . . . I'm sorry you ran that line about New York being the only place where you cannot get a real, thick malted milk. Every soda water dispenser and candy store owner in town, it seems, keep calling up, to say you're crazy, and that they sell them. . . . The "Round Table" manners at the Algonquin have gone phooey . . . The other day I saw a lady stop at the table and talk to a chap, and not one of the men stood up . . . Maybe she wasn't a lady . . . Jack Benny wants to know if he can use that "vice" gag about you at the Palace next week that he used at the Broadhurst Broun benefit . . . I told him your motto was Anything for a Laugh.

I was in Moore's last night for dinner and most of the crowd appeared more interested in one man than anything else . . . At first I thought the fellow everyone was buzzing about was a celebrity from the stage, the screen, the ring or something, but what do you think? . . . He wasn't! . . . He was merely one of the Big Bears of Wall Street, who, they said, was greatly responsible for the Big Mess now going on, and there he was laughing boisterously and looking more prosperous than the rest of the patrons . . . I ran into Irving Caesar there . . . He said to tell you that he went broke listening to tips from presidents of corporations, and that he wishes he could meet some office boys so he could pull himself out of the hole . . . He also said that the only way to make a successful turn in the market was to walk into the Stock Exchange, turn around, and walk right out again!

The publishers tell me "The Columnist Murder" book will be released in June instead of July . . . Never call a person a "blithering idiot," because you'll find some trouble finding the word "blither" in the dicksh . . . No dictionary (up to 1923) recognizes the word; yet Shakespeare used it in "Pericles," viz: "Crickets sound at the oven's mouth e'er they blither for their drought," or am I over your head? . . . It is not found in the Oxford dicksh, nor in the old or new Century, although it crept into Funk & Wagnall's Standard of 1923 as follows: "Blither—same as blather," and is given as dialect . . . Just why dialect, I would like to know . . . Maybe Dr. Vizetelly could explain . . . Texas felt funny because you didn't see her off . . . You know she had planned to stand on the bridge of the liner, and as it passed the Liberty Statue she was going to shoot blanks a la cowboy fashion . . . But there were no cameramen aboard so the idea was shelved . . . Remind me to tell you Dorothy Parker's latest.

Patricia Reilly, of College Humor, says that a Detroit newspaper woman, named Jerry Marvin, claims to have written "Big Business Girl," which novel, you know, was written anonymously . . . The story was recently sold to the movies and Farrar-Rinehart bought the publishing rights long before it was finished . . . It was written by Miss Reilly and S. N. Swanson, the editor of the magazine, so jot it down For The Records . . . I see that Mr. Hays has issued an edict banning gangster flickers . . . Jack Lait had just sold his "Gangster Girl" to Hollywood and got his money in t.n.o. time . . . The publishers of "There Must Be a Bright Tomorrow (For Each Yesterday of Tears)" would appreciate you mentioning the ditty . . . It was written by Prisoner 3223 of Marquette (Mich.) Prison and his name is Wallace Wysocki . . . Give him a break . . . I hear John Anderson, the critic, has been very, very ill . . . Ralph Barton had a cartoon in the March 28 Nyorker entitled: "Pent House Tragedy."

Who's going to see "The Little Show" with you, feller? . . . I ran into Eddie Sullivan, who joints the columning regiment next week . . . He said that he was going to start with a clean slate and wouldn't ape anybody's stuff . . . I told him he was making it too tough for himself . . . I see by the files you gave "Silent Witness" 10 weeks . . . It closes Saturday. It opened March 23. . . . Speaking of plays, would you say that "Alison's House" got the Pee-yew-litzer Prize?—R. C.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Advance Rumely Company stockholders have approved the proposed merger contract with Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Company.

Year's Prospects Poor For Pittsburgh Coal Co.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

LOW PRICES AND FURTHER reductions in demand make it extremely improbable that Pittsburgh Coal Company will be able to improve its position during the present year. The company has reported a loss in every year since 1925 with the single exception of 1929, when a profit of only $15,592 was shown.

Coal prices are at practically the low levels since the war. While they are only slightly lower than a year ago, demand is at a much smaller rate than in 1929, so that the company is not able to operate its properties except on a greatly reduced basis. In addition to this most coal men believe that the movement of coal to the lakes during the present summer will be smaller than usual due to the general business depression and the fact that large stocks have been held over from last year.

Efficiency Increased

SINCE 1925 THE COMPANY has been making large expenditures for improved plant facilities. It has abandoned many of its high cost workings and has consolidated production at mines capable of handling a large volume. Cleaning plants have also been constructed which prepare a major share of the company's output. This has enabled the organization to expand its markets and to realize slightly higher prices for its product. The effects of these improvements and of increased efficiency were shown in the company's income account up to the end of 1929. After that time, however, low prices and reduced demand wiped out these savings resulting from increased efficiency.

In 1926, when the company's labor troubles were at their heighth, the deficit after interest, depletion, depreciation and all other charges, was $2,114,677. The loss was reduced to $1,880,597 in 1927 and to $493,871 in 1928. The company pulled out of the red in 1929, but again showed a loss of $1,078,696 in 1930.

Depletion Charges

IN SPITE OF UNFAVORABLE conditions in the industry the company has continued to set up liberal reserves for depletion and depreciation. These items have always been greater than the annual losses. The company has been making a profit before providing for these reserves. In 1930 $2,329,824 was set aside for depreciation and $1,471,960 for depletion.

In spite of continued operations at a loss, the company's bonds have enjoyed a fairly good market. This is due to stringent sinking fund requirements established on most of the issues. The company has a total funded debt of $27,356,500. The largest issue consists of $19,510,000 of debenture 6s due in 1949. The company is required to place seven cents in the sinking fund for every ton of coal mined after 1931, and there must be a minimum annual payment of $1,100,000 whether any coal is mined or not. Previous to 1932 $500,000 must be placed in the sinking fund annually. Most of the other issues are protected in a similar manner.

Reserves Large

THE COMPANY HAS coal lands carried at $130,835,903 and plants and equipment at $28,427,323 after providing for reserves. Coal deposits are sufficient to last the company for nearly 100 years. These large holdings may prove to be of great value at some future time, but they place an exceedingly heavy burden on the company at present. Local taxes amount to nearly $2,000,000 a year and much of this is on properties which will not be producing until the very distant future.

The company is in a strong financial position, with assets of $21,521,500 against current liabilities of $4,276,756. Cash at the close of 1930 amounted to $3,859,067 and marketable securities were carried at $3,151,846.

Dividends on $35,000,000 for 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock have been in arrears since January 1, 1926. Stockholders are entitled to 5 per cent interest on the unpaid accumulations. There are 400,000 shares of common stock outstanding.

Beauty on Honeymoon At Sea First Learns of 'Jealousy Complex'

ents in St. Louis. There I told my mother of the marriage for the first time. I urged her to come along with me, for Fred previously had suggested the idea to me.

In May, 1924, we left for Europe on the Berengaria, the three of us. I had looked forward to this trip. It was to be my first real voyage, something I had dreamed about when a girl. But from the first I was disillusioned. It was on this trip that Fred began to reveal his jealousy. I was afraid to look at anyone for fear of his anger. We made no friends on the boat. Mother and I were miserable.

Fred's attitude alarmed me. My mother tried to cheer me up, but I felt too blue. I had a premonition then that all my dreams would vanish. Still, I tried to pamper him and carried out his wishes to the letter.

As in many other events in my married life, exaggerated reports were circulated about our honeymoon voyage on the Berengaria. The facts and the reports of that trip differ greatly. Let me tell you how:

In the first place, Fred's efforts to keep our marriage secret failed when we started on our honeymoon. Still, we didn't mind the publicity until it was reported that Fred's second wife (to whom he was still legally married) was on board the same ship. Of course, I did not hear of these reports until I reached Paris.

You can imagine how dismayed I was. After all, I knew of no other wife (only a woman who was using Fred's name). But after reading the reports I was satisfied that since I knew they were wrong in some respects, they probably were wrong in all.

False Rumors

For instance, the reports said that Fred's second wife, the former Lura McKenna, had learned of our marriage and the proposed honeymoon abroad and had promptly engaged passage on the same vessel. They added that I did not like this situation, with the result that the voyage was a stormy one, with quarrels between me and my husband, not to mention the report that Lura McKenna called on me, after the boat got under way, and gave me a piece of her mind.

I repeat, I never knew of the existence of Lura McKenna until I saw a report in a newspaper in Paris, and even then I dismissed it as false. I decided to enjoy myself in Paris. It was such a marvelous city, so gloriously beautiful, exactly as entrancing as I had dreamed. But always in the background of my thoughts was Fred's jealousy. I could not understand it.

Frequently, even a few days after we arrived in Paris, he would have a fit of strange anger. In one of them he told me my marriage was no good. I was terrified. Were those casual reports I had heard and read true? Did this statement—that our marriage was "no good"—explain Fred's attitude?

I most emphatically did not like the situation. The realization that I had been duped overwhelmed me with shame and anger. In addition I was mortified by Fred's persistent quarrels. I decided to return immediately to America.

Flees to New York

I took the first boat available. All the way back to New York I was pursued by wireless messages urging me to return. When I landed, there were more cables from Fred awaiting me. These also asked for forgiveness, pleaded with me to forget and forgive and to come back to him in Paris where, he said, everything would be straightened out.

Instead, I went to Washington and spoke to my husband's attorney. After a talk with him I decided I would not return. However, I continued to receive such pleading, promising cables—not knowing just which way to turn—that I concluded the best thing would be to go back to Paris.

And then, the very day after my arrival, who should turn up but this woman I had been told was using my husband's name. What a mess! It was awful, the hours of suffering mother and I went through. I never knew where I stood and asking questions only brought an explosion of anger, vile names and abuse.

It wasn't until I finally demanded a showdown from my husband that I learned the real story—a story of Fred's romantic life that amazed and appalled me.

Rarick Is Disturbed by Contents of Letter

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

CHAPTER XXI.

Unquestionably the need of the small retreat of Ramon's fitting-up was becoming imperative. There was such a thing as being conspicuous even at the inconspicuous little tea rooms of the West Seventies.

Ramon, waiting in the tea room, had a headache. Something repulsive had happened. His dancing partner, the Spanish girl, a volatile, gifted creature, desperately in love with a shiftless husband who was brutal to her, had fallen ill of a skin irritation that manifested itself on her face and disqualified her for the dance.

The sight of the blemished girl had been abhorrent to Ramon, who had also been obliged to advance the improvident pair $50 to cover immediate doctor bills.

Jenny loved the complete way in which he surrendered himself into her hands. "Life is confusing, Jennifer's Jenny. I have sympathy, of course, but I cannot help being repulsed by sickness. Of course, perhaps some day I may fall ill myself."

"No, darling!" cried Jenny, eager to be omniscient in his behalf.

Gives Him More Money

"It gave me the shivers just now to see her. I was glad to give her money. It strapped me to let her have 50, though, Jennifer's Jenny."

"I know that," she said, slipping a yellow bill, that was already folded into the hole of her glove, from her hand into his.

He placed a kiss along a lean, suede-covered finger.

"It is hard not to feel upset, Jennifer's Jenny, when life is just one frusteration after frusteration."

He mispronounced "frustration," with a lisp that was adorable to her.

"Everything will come out all right, Ramon."

"How can everything come out all right, when I am not even to be with you tonight, but must sit with that tiresome little Clabby person at a table that is far from yours?"

"You are going to drive home with me afterward. Around the park three times."

"Darling—how—"

"Never mind how. There is another new chauffeur. I could not bear to live through the day, dear, if it didn't mean that much time alone with you."

"I am looking at you, Jennifer's Jenny, across this ugly table-top, but in reality I am kissing you one thousand times."

"And me you, Ramon." Across the table their glances poured.

"I must be at Fifty-seventh street at 4 o'clock."

"Damn four!"

"Perhaps I shall drop in later at Perroquet's; but keep away, as usual, dear."

At 4 o'clock the unmounted body of a specially designed French car was submitted to Jenny in the Fifty-seventh street show-rooms of a firm of automobile importers.

At 5 o'clock Jenny picked up Mme. Tarafa at her apartment-hotel and took her to Perroquet's for tea, where Ramon danced. He did not come over; but again, from across the room, their glances poured.

At 6 o'clock, by appointment, a chinchilla coat, which had arrived by way of Moscow, was delivered to Jenny. In the beauty of twilit snow, it hung from her narrow shoulders as she stood before triple mirrors in her boudoir. She proposed to wear it that night. Ramon had admired one worn by Mrs. Stanley Grimes.

Jenny happened to know that the Grimes garment had cost $45,000 in Paris, plus 60 per cent duty. Her own, with the duty, came to seventy-four thousand. Rarick, who was completely easy-going about her expenditures for finery, paid such bills as these with puzzlement.

Rarick Is Upset

At 7 o'clock the maid in the Breton cap helped Jenny into a black-satin gown that rose to a high neck in front and to a bare and daring V at the back. As she was looping herself in graduated ropes of graduated pearls the door of her dressing-room burst open without the preamble of a knock.

It was Rarick. His face, locked in the horrible immobility of a gargoyle, was the color of granite.

"I want Jennifer." A paper was crushed in his hand, and his lips were hauled back from his teeth, making them protrude as they do in a skull.

That same day began for Rarick with his usual habit of twisting reluctantly out of the belated sleep that came to him just before dawn. It was so good, this early-morning drifting down beneath the snows of consciousness. It was more like a little death, he sometimes thought, than the sleep which must come to most people.

The muffled sound of the city came roaring softly, and he could hear Jenny moving about in her boudoir, giving the nervous kind of staccato orders to her maid that made her attitude toward her servants seem imperious. His opening thought had to do with an idea that had boomed into his brain during the night.

Sees Architects

Why not erect a concert auditorium—vast, aerial, dramatically sky high—on the roof of the 79-story Rarick Building? There must still be time to adapt construction plans to that daring scheme. A Gothic auditorium of superb twilights. Three thousand seats, each one a fauteuil. A cathedral organ, diapason pipes. If only the roof space would permit. Increase cost by millions—better to call in Yardsley, the architect, at once. . . .

Rarick Auditorium!

At 8:30, an attorney came to sit beside him while he had his breakfast in a small sunroom of superb walnut walls, inlaid with Rarick's collection of bronze medallions. The discussion was in regard to a pending suit against Rarick Chain for infringement of copyright law on a toy edition of a pocket dictionary they were about to distribute in hundreds of thousands at 5 cents the copy.

At 9 o'clock they rode downtown together in the Renault Sedan as far as Times square, where Rarick dived into the subway.

At nine-thirty Hellman met him at the private door of his private office, took his hat and coat, and handed him a drink of vichy water.

That was part of being a man of affairs. You paid somebody to see to it that you were properly stoked with the amount of drinking-water prescribed by your doctor.

At noon, while the anteroom filled up with an assortment of charity committee representatives, department managers, factory executives, automobile agents, and bank messengers, two harried-looking architects with portfolios and long rolls of blue-prints were admitted into Rarick's office by a secret door.

It developed that the roof auditorium, being an afterthought, would involve structural changes of appalling magnitude and expense, to say nothing of possible building violations, steel-beam problems, water installations, and engineering difficulties too technical to bear immediate discussion.

But the idea of the auditorium had formed, hardened, and fastened into the mind of Rarick. Hellman hovered, during this exhaustive interview, offering such conservative objections as he dared, and urging deferred decisions.

The greatest musicians available were to pour forth the music of the masters to the knick-knack-ridden public that swarmed the aisles of the Rarick chain stores.

It was to cost $3,000,000, house two of the most famous Rembrandts in existence, and the organ builder was to die in its loft of heartstroke induced by unbearable excitement, the day the instrument pealed for the opening strain of "Ave Maria" to its first audience.

So much for one of Rarick's sleepless dreams.

At 10 minutes to 4, Hellman walked as far as the subway with him, handing him a packet of letters to read upon his arrival home.

Reads Disturbing Letter

At shortly past 4, after a cup of tea and two wafers, Rarick let himself relax into the unicorn chair in his library. For an hour he lay back there, riding the quiet, as a swimmer floats on his back, finally pressing a button to flood that quiet with an organ overture called "Field of the Cloth of Gold."

No matter how chromoesque musically, there was something about it that set Rarick's blood marching. He could see himself mounting—always mounting steps, a cloak streaming off his shoulder — mounting — mounting—peaks off in the distance, snow-capped.

A viola slipped into a cadenza that seemed to pour from a bird-throat—somewhere — high —was morning air like ice-water. He could see himself mounting—clouds formed and were faces—the chorister face of Avery—a woman's face, with lips desirable—up — up — Pyrenees of mountain-tops . . .

Left alone, Rarick began to rip open letters off the packet that Hellman had handed him at the subway. It was after he had read the third of them that he burst into Jenny's boudoir with it crushed in his hand, and his lips flaring back in the fashion that made a skull of his face.

DAILY TRUE STORY Peerage

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Delaney Is Asked to Help Break Engagement

Mavis Ardsley caught Marvin Delancy's eye. She smiled invitingly, she even crooked a finger, which, Emily Post will tell you, shouldn't be done.

But Mavis was extremely anxious to have Delancy cross the sidewalk to her car that she might speak with him.

When he came over she said: "I was going to telephone you, Marvin."

"Something on your mind, Mavis, or has your fourth at an afternoon contract game quit you?"

"Take me to a nice quiet little nook where we may have tea and talk, please, Marvin, like the good soul you are."

"Is this some diabolical scheme to push me overboard into the matrimonial sea with some friend of yours?" he asked, with mock severity.

"As if anyone could lead you within sight of matrimony!" Mavis exclaimed. She added, "No, it's a serious talk—hop in."

He got into her car and gave directions to the chauffeur.

"Well, what dragons must I kill for you, fair lady?" he asked..

"Mother wants me to marry into the peerage."

"And you have some other plans?"

"No matrimonial plans. I just don't want to marry this Lord Jarmine."

"This is simple of solution, Mavis — merely inform your charming mother to that effect."

Mavis shook her head.

"Mother's a dear. I don't want to quarrel with her, and so I thought of you."

"Ah, you want me to go and quarrel with your mother—that's a bit too strong, Mavis. Why the devil wish it on me?"

"Why because we've always been friends, because you are sensible, you don't want to marry me, I don't want to marry anyone and you have a bigger fortune than I, so I know mother will be influenced by what you say—and besides, Uncle Langford says you should have been in the diplomatic service. He says you can make people believe black is white."

"Five and Ten" Synopsis

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. He buys a magnificent home after being urged by his wife, Jenny, and finds himself hating her. This is accentuated by his own temperamental inability to get close to Jennifer and Avery, his children. Rarick installs an odd genius, Dr. Felix Gerkes, in his house. Jenny objects, but to no avail. Jenny begins to be intrigued with Ramon Lopez, a youthful gigolo. Avery comes home from school to beg his mother to help him get leave from his father to have a couple of years to himself. Jennifer likes the handsome and rich Barry Rhodes, and Jenny urges her to try and win him. Berry kisses Jennifer while taking her to one of Leslie Edgerton's parties. Jennifer is not welcomed very cordially by Leslie and feels humiliated. Leslie becomes boisterous when she sees Jennifer and Berry by themselves. Leslie says she is married to Berry and Jennifer goes home feeling shamed. Rarick plans to interest Avery in a new theatrical scheme. Ramon, intimating that he is neglecting his work to see Jenny, succeeds in getting money from her.

Now Go On

Dislikes Man

"What's wrong with him?"

"I don't like him, I don't want to marry into the peerage, I don't want them to say over there that I am another wealthy American girl trying to break into their aristocracy, and besides—"

She hesitated.

"There is some chap over here?"

"Afraid not—but go and talk with mother. She thinks you are wonderful, always did. Make her see that it would be unfair to me to expect this match when I do not want it. She will tell you that real daughters of real people always follow paternal advice."

"But they do not, Mavis."

"But tell her so, Marvin."

"This is a big order, sweet child—I beg your pardon, old girl, but for a pal like you I would do much, knowing that you have no designs on me and that I have considered matrimony so seriously that I shall eschew it—therefore, we shall see what we shall see."

"You are a darling."

"First, suppose I drop around sometime and get a look at this Lord Whatshisname?"

"Why?"

"So that when I use all of my diplomacy on your mother in your behalf she cannot say that I do not know him, that I have not even seen him."

"See—I knew you were terribly wise. How shall I arrange it?"

"When are you going up to Gray Crags?"

"Next week—and mother will have him up there kicking around until I'll go daffy."

"I'll drop up."

"I shall sleep—I am betting you will convince mother."

They were driven back.

Receives Letter

Delancy thought a great deal about this. Mavis Ardsley was a dear girl and they had long been great pals—never once had she or her mother attempted to make a match of it. They were just good understanding friends. One thing worried him, it was the belief that Mavis had dissembled a little. There must be some young man in whom she was interested. She wouldn't admit it, and he worried a little more. Mavis wouldn't make a really poor marriage, yet she might marry rather thoughtlessly.

About a week later Delancy received a letter.

It contained a brief and unsigned note to the effect that "he" was then a guest at Gray Crags, the Ardsley Summer place.

Delancy drove up and stopped at the Valley Inn. He enjoyed the golf and met Mavis, her mother and Lord Jarmine at the club. He was most gracious. So was Mrs. Ardsley, who took occasion to make it very clear to his lordship that Mr. Delancy was an old friend of the family and an avowed bachelor.

Marvin suggested that he would not be selfish, but would take them all up to the so-called Druid's Dell for a day's outing.

The Druid's Dell was a most sightly place. Delancy had stocked his car with everything necessary for a picnic luncheon, even to iced boxes of foods and liquors.

Lord Jarmine was smooth, economical with his conversation and not at all an unpleasant chap.

Mrs. Ardsley Happy

He raved properly over the scenery, admitted that it was almost equal to the scenery in northern England, and showed a proper interest in the forthcoming "spread." He even took hold to help Delancy.

While Delancy was opening cartons of iced chicken and such things, Lord Jarmine helped prepare the highballs.

"We'll use the top of this hamper, it will be rather jolly," his lordship said.

Mrs. Ardsley beamed, she was so happy over the splendid impression Lord Jarmine seemed to be making.

He deftly opened a bottle of Scotch that had come, uncut, from his native country, he poured off the top, a thimbleful, on the ground and proceeded to make excellent highballs. He deftly wiped the patent leather top of the hamper with one of the napkins where he had spilled a little of the drink.

They had a very pleasant time and drove down to the Ardsley place through the sunset.

Mavis came out to the car to bid Delancy goodbye.

"Why don't you [illegible]p and talk with mother?" she asked.

"Not now—it would be too apparent that you put me up to it."

"What do you think of him?"

Delancy shook his head.

Then he got extremely busy. He got cabled information from England, he took an undersecretary from the British embassy up with him and enabled him to meet Lord Parmine and then he managed to see his lordship alone.

Lord Jarmine Departs

"Mackson," Delancy said, "they are anxious to see you at the British embassy in Washington."

"Are you speaking to me?"

"To the former bartender at the American bar in the Crilton in London, George Mackson. I suggest that you disappear."

"Is it a crude Amurrican joke or are you barmy, sir?" the man demanded.

"I've had the Honorable Harold Gadsby up to look you over. He's related to Lord Jarmine. He tells me that if you are Lord Jarmine you have grown twenty years younger, grown a head of hair and grown a right arm that he lost in Belgium," Delancy told him.

"Lord Jarmine" nodded and hurried away.

Delancy ran over to see Mrs. Ardsley.

"Couldn't do anything to embarrass you—when I found that he was just a bartender and a fake I gave him a chance to disappear," Delancy told her and gave her plenty of proof.

"But how did you—er—know this at first?" she asked.

"From the manner in which he tossed away the top fusel oil from the bottle of Scotch and from the graceful gesture with which he wiped the top of the hamper—only a man trained with the bar rag could have done that."

Mrs. Ardsley was extremely grateful.

Mavis rode down to the gate, hidden from the house by high shrubs.

"You darling," she cried, "I am going to kiss you!"

"Tut, tut, old lady—save it for the chap you're in love with."

"Right-O," she said, and she suddenly kissed Marvin Delancy, hopped down and ran back up the driveway.

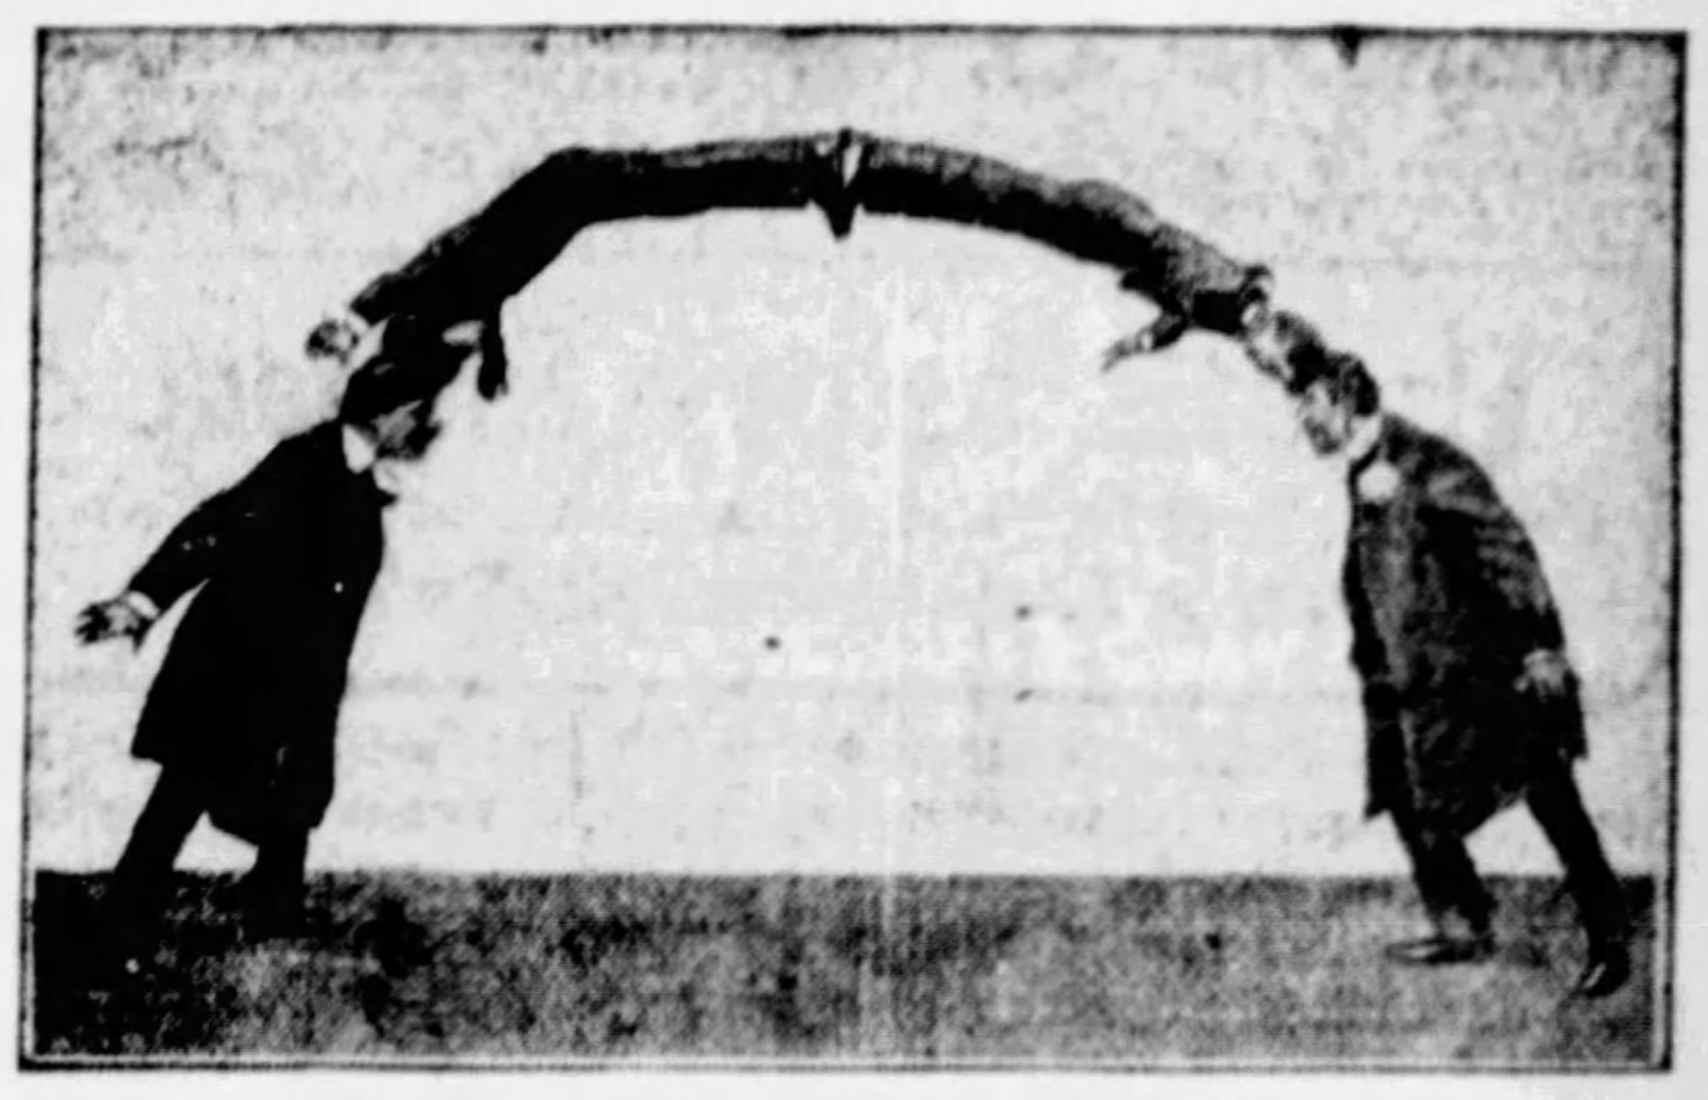
BUSINESS CURVE SHOWS INCREASED BASIC PROSPERITY



Business men will do well to study the above chart before circulating pessimistic reports, the cads! Everybody knows that the basic industries in America are the tariff and the Alexander Hamilton Institute. In routing a salesman, it is customary to indicate his itinerary by stretching a string from pin to pin in the wall maps. The Cubans become very dexterous at the game, called petlota, or wickerwork, which is more than you can say for some people whose names we might mention.

According to Chairman Wood of the Republican National Committee, "Political activity is one of the highest duties of citizenship."

Which leaves considerable room for argument. But there's no doubt about it being one of the lowest duties of statesmanship.

Unsatisfactory System

Authority Given Legislative Committees Makes It Too Easy for Lawmakers to Dodge Votes.

Representative government did not function in the Legislature during the recent session, M. A. Musmanno, member of the House, asserts.

In support of the charge he mentions measures which were undoubtedly desired by a large part of the people, yet were smothered in committee.

Mr. Musmanno's home rule Sunday bill is a good example. Notwithstanding the strong demand for such legislation the measure was prevented from coming to a vote.

A somewhat similar measure, applying to baseball only, was brought before the House by amending, on the floor, a bill applying to milk deliveries on Sunday. The Musmanno bill was killed in committee.

A poll taken by the Sun-Telegraph of the registered voters of Allegheny County showed a majority of five to one in favor of repeal or modification of the Blue Law. A poll taken in Philadelphia gave a similar result.

Mr. Musmanno accordingly introduced a bill which would have authorized Sunday sports in municipalities whose citizens voted in favor of them.

No one can question that if the Legislature had fairly represented the public the bill would have been enacted into law.

Instead it was smothered in the Law and Order Committee.

That was the fate of other bills which the public also favored.

These experiences suggest the need for revision of the Legislature's rules. It takes a constitutional majority to discharge a committee from consideration of a bill. The number of votes required for this purpose might profitably be reduced.

It is too easy under the system for the lawmakers to dodge votes.

Union Miners' Victory

Signing of "Closed Shop" Agreements by West Virginia Coal Companies Is Significant.

The United Mine Workers of America lost the last great coal strike in this district. After many years of co-operation all the large and practically all the small coal companies broke off relations with the union. "Open shop" was declared and each operator paid such wages as he saw fit.

That is still the predominating situation; but there is a hint that a change may be coming in the news from Fairmont, W. Va., that two companies in that field have signed "closed shop" agreements with the union.

It would be interesting to know why these operators resumed contractual relations with the United Mine Workers. Did they yield to coercion? Did they sign to avoid or settle a strike? Were they moved by the fear that if the United Mine Workers should not be supported the National Miners' Union, the new rival organization with the Communist leanings, would gain strength?

Or was the motive a conviction that collective bargaining is, after all, the right way and the most satisfactory way of dealing with labor?

Answers to the questions might help to solve some of the pressing problems of this badly disorganized major industry.

Sales Tax

New Congress Should Consider It as a Substitute for Income Tax Inequalities.

Senators and representatives in Congress cannot afford to turn a deaf ear to the frank views of the Secretary of the Treasury regarding the grave deficit in our unstable income tax system.

Reviewing the debt-retiring and revenue-raising policy of the government during the past 11 years, Mr. Mellon, in his recent radio address, said:

"The situation in which we find ourselves at present, with a serious deficit facing us at the end of the year, raises the question as to whether we have yet developed a sufficiently well balanced system to provide the revenues on which the government must be able to count from year to year."

With convincing facts and figures to prove his point, Mr. Mellon again called the country's attention to the excessive burden imposed upon the 2,500,000 individuals and the 250,000 corporations that annually pay income taxes to the federal government.

His 10 years' experience in the secretaryship of the Treasury has convinced Mr. Mellon that—

"The individual income tax has become so restricted in its application that it has become a class rather than a general tax, with its incidence limited to a comparatively small number of taxpayers."

The least wealthy avoid the tax through legislation, which relieves them of it, and the most wealthy evade the tax through governmental secrecy, combined with legal chicanery and dishonesty.

Practically the whole tax falls upon "a comparatively small number of taxpayers" and falls heaviest upon that most valuable class in the community, on whose earned incomes the levy falls, not as an income tax, but as capital confiscation.

The Hearst newspapers have long advocated the adoption of a sales tax to relieve the inequitable hardship imposed upon the small percentage of our total population who pay individual income taxes and capital confiscation taxes.

Since 1914 the sales tax in various forms has been a part of the revenue-raising laws of 16 foreign countries—including France, Germany, Austria, Belgium, Italy, Poland, Cuba, Canada and Turkey.

Our own insular government in the Philippines and our own state of West Virginia have found the sales tax a most satisfactory revenue producer.

The sales tax is simple to administer and equitable in character.

Its payment day by day embarrasses neither buyer nor seller.

It is easily collected and should save our taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars spent in enforcing the income tax laws and fees paid to accountants and attorneys.

The gasoline tax adopted by many of the states is really a form of the sales tax. It has proved to be a rich source of revenue, an easy form of taxation, and meets with far less opposition than other forms of taxation.

Let the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation make a thorough study of the operation of the sales tax between now and the convening of the new Congress.

And in view of all that Secretary Mellon has so truly said in criticism of the inequalities of our present income tax, the new Congress may well find that the sales tax is the solution of the serious problem which the Secretary of the Treasury has laid before the nation.

Flirting Again

The Treaty of Versailles, which ended the "War to End All Wars," looms as the TORCH which may, at any moment, ignite all Europe—a veritable powder magazine.

Germany and Austria want to form a customs union as they should be permitted to do. France says, "Never!" The German Hitlerites want to smash the Versailles Treaty as the stumbling block to Germany-Austria rehabilitation.

France spreads her talons about Rumania, Poland, Jugo-Slavia and Czechoslovakia, preaching the gospel that the hegemony of Europe must be maintained.

France tries to get Great Britain into the imbroglio as a signatory to the League of Nations. All Europe tries to get Sam into the League through the trap-door of the League Court, for Sam has plenty of men and money, useful in war time.

In his wisdom, Sam will mind his own business and STAY OUT.

Debunking the Great Lover

Don Juan has been completely debunked!

The Don's technique, according to a recent newspaper article by a young writer, was crude and amateurish. He was too slow and too tame—particularly too SLOW!

Shades of Byron, Marc Antony, Lochinvar and Cassanova—pass the smelling salts! What these "love-technicians" of the machine-age don't know about love would fill the Congressional Library!

* * *

What they can't understand or perceive is, that it is just the time and trouble and effort and skill it takes to win a woman that gives the old love-game its "kick." Don Juan (whatever his sins) was a sportsman—not a Coney Island wooden-duck marksman. He would have gotten no thrill out of shooting tame pigeons or bagging tame squirrels in the park. Or kissing easily-kissed ladies, wearing kiss-proof rouge.

OH HE WAS TOO SLOW

But, according to this philosophy, what the modern young Lothario regards as a wild time, is to have all his cross-word puzzles solved for him, and his women poised, ready to fall into his arms.

He wouldn't run a foot-race, unless he could be carried to the goal in a sport-car. If HE had been Rembrandt, he would never have used that slow old process of mixing his colors on a palette and smearing them on with a brush. He'd have lolled back comfortably and shot them on with a machine-gun!

If he had been Phidias, he would not have bothered with a mallet and a chisel. He'd merely have given the old marble a few bangs with a sledge-hammer, and have called it "Interpreting the MOOD."

If he had been Marc Antony, he'd have given Cleopatra one swift kiss—and "the air." And said, "Bye-bye, Old Girl. You're all right for knitting socks; but, I'm off for a place, where the babies are blonder and easier and safer!"

And this, mes amis, is "love" (as it is erroneously called) in the machine-age! Love—and the most listless, languid, lethargic lot of lovers the world has ever known!

* * *

The old sporting spirit is dead! Paolo and Romeo and Don Juan and Paris and Marc Antony were just "time-wasters!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 1.—What with this, that and the other it has been so many months since I visited my syndicate offices I decided the other afternoon to drop in unexpectedly—surprise! surprise—for a chat. Sociability wrings a lot out of me. I go home a wreck, often with a skin rash and a touch of the vapours.

But after all I owe them something. At least five or six weeks advanced salary. To say nothing of a quick loan for a trip last summer which is not in the very best shape. My overlords are ensconced high in a skyscraper with a vista of Times Square at their feet.

It is an expansive suite sliced up into offices with gilt announcements—Mr. McNitt, Mr. MacAdam, Mr. Driscoll, Mr. Murphy and so on—glittering on opaque glass doors. A swell set up. I beamed on a pleasant young lady and asked for each one in turn and was told each was "in conference."

So, with the tranquil look of a Dorset ram I waited in the reception room hoping I might wing one of them on the fly when he popped out for cracked ice. Or an extra glass. In repose I go in for thumb twiddling, twiddling forward with great rapidity and then with no effort shifting into reverse.

I sat with my gray hat on one knee, a brief case on the other and a cane resting against my leg. Thus I twiddled while the mighty conferred. It struck me there has been little change in twiddling for years. So I worked out a brand new twiddle.

But it requires such a sudden jerk of the thumb that first my hat fell on the floor, then my brief case, and finally the cane clattered. With so many things dropping I took no chances and got up and took a quick hitch in my trousers. Still there was no let-up in the conferring.

At intervals another but still more beautiful lady—those suckers have been holding out on me—would rush up in bright-eyed eagerness to inquire: "Do you wish to see some one?" The last one was too much. I was tempted to shriek: "No one but you," kiss her and jump out the window. I'm no account any more anyway.

About 4 o'clock—imagine getting back from lunch at that hour when over at my house they were beating the steak for dinner—Rube Goldberg barged in. Glancing at me, he cracked: "Hello, menial! Waiting?" I snapped: "No, just lounging around raising a beard." He called back over his shoulder: "Fine, you'd make a great left Smith Brother at that."

* * *

By this time I was twiddled out so I took up foot tapping. I'm an old hand at that. Nothing fancy, but just plain old back-in-the-hollow stuff. I've foot tapped on some of the biggest verandahs on the west coast as well as a couple in Atlantic City. This went on until dusk was sifting its queer whorls and arabesques around the room. There's uptown writing! Finally Mr. MacAdam ushered a gentleman out, spun on his heel and exclaimed: "Well, well, if it isn't the wonder kiddie! Stick around"—and he slid back in his coop. So there I sat like a plague-taked foot-tapping fool. Tap, tap, tap, tap, tap. One hip asleep and the other numbing up.

But I came to pay a social call and would stick for the finish. The McIntyres are all like that. Cousin Etta came to visit us one spring from Nebraska and when I left home four years later she was still there, cheering us every fall with the announcement she must get "back to the men folks for Christmas." Not only that she wore out our best rocker and had the second best so that every whip stitch it would give a sudden squeak and skid.

* * *

One by one the pretty ladies—stenographers, secretaries, telephone girls and "Do you wish to see someone?" askers—drifted out, freshly powdered and mascaraed. Char-women arrived with pails and mops. The lady began to swing in the electric toothpaste ad. down in Broadway. Newsies howled early editions. Arrogant laughter floated up from the canyon below.

* * *

And then Mr. McNitt swished out of his cage. "Well, young fellow," he said. "Rarely see you here. Nice of you to drop in. Sorry I must rush on"—and he was gone. "Young fellow!", "Wonder kiddie!"—You'd think I was a puling infant. They might have given me a red toy balloon or orange in a net sack to remember them by. As it was, all I could do was go home sucking my favorite thumb.

MAKING GREAT DISCOVERIES

By Archibald Henderson

The average person, the man in the street, has comparatively little conception of the methods by which men discover scientific truths. They are given to the habit of thinking that scientific discoverers deal only with the complicated, the obscure, the remote. Quite the contrary is often the case. A scientist like Huxley can take a piece of chalk and make it the basis for the most fascinating exposition of the deeper scientific principles and discoveries which explain that piece of chalk.

Often the greatest discoveries arise from a searching analysis of the most elemental materials and the simplest or most familiar phenomena. Frequently, no apparatus whatever or only the simplest, is needed to enable the scientist to arrive at a great truth. Franklin needed only a kite and a key in order to astound the world. Any one of the 92 elements will afford knowledge of the laws regarding electrons and protons, and the inner constitution of the atom. Marbles rolling down an inclined plane enabled Archimedes to formulate one of the fundamental laws of physics.

The scientist makes a discovery. How does he do it? There are several ways by which this may be done. First, he may discover new things, that is, things previously unknown. He finds them, precisely as the explorer finds them—by going in search of them. He probably has some sort of "hunch" which starts him off on his voyage of exploration and discovery. A famous scientist once said regarding a discovery not yet made: I KNOW the result, but I do not yet know how to arrive at it, how to prove it.

In addition to finding things—radio-active substances in pitchblende, for example, the scientist makes another kind of discovery. He finds relations between things, which had not been found before. Light and wireless waves are found to be cognate, in the possession of electro-magnetic properties—since both travel with the same speed, roughly 186,000 miles per second.

As Arthur E. Bostwick says in Pivotal Figures of Science: When the Italian Galileo first saw the sunspots, when our own Asaph Hall brought to light the moons of Mars, when Heinrich Hertz discovered electric waves in Germany, and Pierre Curie and his wife extracted radium from pitchblende in France, they were doing precisely what Columbus did. These things had existed before, just as America had. They were now merely made known to man.

There is a third type of scientific discovery, which surpasses the others, in being more general, more universal. It is the discovery of laws, from relating other laws. It is the combination of a whole series of separate laws into one general law. We naturally think of the famous laws of science: Mendel's law evolution, universal gravitation, the conservation of energy, the second law of thermodynamics. All of our thinking is the various fields in which the discovery was made and often in many other fields. Each of these laws rested upon a number of other laws; and were formulated through a combination of them. The same thing is true in invention. Thus it was discovered that sound could be reproduced by mechanical means. Eventually this led to the invention of the phonograph.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Reason

Sometimes, when cares and sorrows come
To cloud the light of day,
We hear the sufferers complain
That grief has dimmed their way;
And bitterly they voice their woe
At life so strangely marred:
"We might have borne all other loss;
But this . . . it is too hard!"

Yet often those so crushed and torn
By cruel hurts will find,
After the flight of many years,
Their pangs not all unkind.
A secret compensation lay
Deep-hidden in their pain;
They grew more calm, more brave and wise
To face the fight again.

They learned at last that troubles came
Or loss their pathway barred
To prove the courage that was theirs,
And show not plight too hard.

Finest Sight in the World

Here It Is.

A MOTHER AND HER BABY. NO GREATER HAPPINESS THAN THIS.

Young women ask, "Shall I get married and have children or shall I have a 'career'?"

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred when they try for a career they don't GET it, unless you call "a career" a typewriter or answering a bell from an outside office.

If they have a career—on the stage, in literature, art or business—it is usually unsatisfactory at best; always leaves a feeling of emptiness and sadness, unless there are children.

And if there are children, as there should be, the career interferes with their care. A child does not need SOME of its mother's time and affection. It needs ALL of both, plus her most intense devotion.

Every young woman should look forward to her only real career, as illustrated in the picture above—the career of MOTHERHOOD.

The picture presents an extremely fine little baby and happiness in the mother's face. Do you think any other "career" could bring such happiness as this? It might bring satisfied vanity. Footlights are brilliant; applause is intoxicating; success, even in dull business, probably has its reward in self-approval.

But this picture shows THE REAL HAPPINESS FOR WOMEN.

Balboa looking on the Pacific, Columbus touching land, Newton realizing that mathematical calculations had proved the soundness of his law of gravitation, Nero crowning the King of Armenia, crouching at his feet, Tunney knocking Dempsey out of the championship, never knew such happiness as fills the heart and mind of this mother.

Young ladies, GET MARRIED. There is always a young man within reach. Select him carefully. Remember that first among important qualities comes INTELLIGENCE. Your children are entitled to an intelligent father.

Next comes KINDNESS, for kindness is to married life what sunshine is to flowers.

Third comes CONCENTRATION, capacity for hard work, which should go with real intelligence.

But, whatever you do and whatever you choose, GET MARRIED.

Don't argue the question, "Can two live as cheaply as one?" Perhaps they can't, but one cannot eat as cheaply as he can starve. Nevertheless, he eats.

Single life starves the soul or undermines moral character. You don't want to do either.

Men propose when the time comes, but women pick out their husband before the gentleman knows anything about it, and they manage the whole affair. It is usually all settled before the proposal, although the man does not know it.

Young women, get married and KNOW the happiness that you see in this mother's face.

It is the only happiness worth while for women; all the rest is hollow.

By the way, the lady in this picture is Mrs. Vyvyan Drury, who used to be Miss Essex French and is not responsible for the queerly spelled "Vyvyan."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Strange—how many people live in dreams.

Their bodies move before you. Their hands busy themselves with various tasks. But their movements are mechanical. Their eyes hardly see you. Their ears barely hear you. Their thoughts are far away. They are living in a dream.

Long ago they discovered that life was difficult and decided that it was too difficult for them to tackle . . . that they must escape from it, somehow. They may have decided that as children, or after some shock or loss or wound to their adult vanity. They did not, of course, decide consciously, nor in those definite words. They did not say—"Life is too hard, I will hide from it." But deep in the secret places of their hearts they began to duck and evade and look for an escape. So they began to dream.

Their bodies still stayed where they were, doing the tiresome chores which they had to do. But their thoughts began to slip away on tip-toe . . away from reality into the land of dreams.

They began to imagine themselves rich or famous or beautiful or beloved. They saw themselves moving through applauding crowds . . . wandering through moonlit forests . . . making great orations . . . in the arms of a lover. But however varied the pictures, certain details were always the same. The dream world was always an easy world. There were no conflicts in it, no tests. They were always popular and successful in the dream world . . often powerful and feared.

At first, the dreams only came now and then. Between times, they tried to face reality. But as soon as reality hurt them, they escaped into dreams. Presently, they learned the trick of living almost constantly in dreams.

But even then they weren't happy. For dreams, like everything else, bring consequences. And one of the consequences of dreams is that the neglected body is always making mistakes. The dish it was drying, drops. The seam it was sewing, slips. The letter it was typing, scrambles. And then everyone gets mad and criticizes and blames.

"I never can do anything right!" cries the dreamer, coming out of his dream with an angry thud. Why do people criticize him so? He wants them to like him. He wants them to think he is efficient and praise him. And he believes that there is some malicious fate which prevents all this . . . some secret blight which spoils everything.

Of course, there isn't. He doesn't have to make mistakes. He could do his job as well as the next man, if he'd keep his mind on the job. And people are quite as willing to like him—if he'll act like a normal person. But instead of facing these simple facts he wallows in self-pity and blames fate. It's easier to do that than to face reality.

And so his life ravels out into failure. He never achieves his dreams—he never adjusts himself to reality. He is a man without a country for his soul.

You've known people like that—
Perhaps you are a person like that.
